FIRST METHODIST STEWARDS WANTED DR. DUBOSE MOVED

R. K. Rambo Says Delegation Went to Marietta and Asked That He Be Made Presiding Elder of Atlanta District

PALMER AND NUTTING CRITICISE DR. DUBOSE

Former Says He Has Tried to Force People to Be Good, and Latter Intimates That He Likes Spotlight Too Well

Following the publication in The Journal Tuesday that ten prominent members of the First Methodist church had recently been dropped from the board of stewards by Dr. H. M. DuBose, the pastor, several of the banished stewards have come out in interviews giving their version of the affair.

At least two of them, Judge H. E. W. Palmer and Alderman James R. Nutting, criticise Dr. DuBose more or less severely. Judge Palmer intimates that the board of stewards wanted another pastor, and asked the bishop at the annual conference last week in Marietta to give them one. Alderman Nutting suggests that Dr. DuBose is too fond of the spotlight.

The portion of Judge Palmer's interview as to a change in the pastor is borne out by R. K. Rambo, one of the stewards, who went to Marietta to see the bishop.

"We did not exactly ask for another pastor," said Mr. Rambo to The Journal yesterday. "We suggested that Dr. DuBose be made presiding elder of the Atlanta district to succeed Dr. Lovejoy, who died during the conference. Of course that amounted to the same as asking for another pastor. Although Dr. DuBose renominated me and I was re-elected a steward, I am not in harmony with his extreme views, and I shall decline to serve. I shall continue to support the church, however, simply taking a back seat and letting others, who are in sympathy with the pastor, serve on the board."

Dr. DuBose Wednesday morning was called by The Journal over long distance telephone at Dawson, Ga., where he is attending the annual South Georgia conference, and dictated the following statement:

"In all matters I have acted within my rights as a man and a minister. I have acted in the fear of God and the love of the church, without fear of man and without expectation of favor."

Rev. Clement C. Carr, a superannuated Methodist preacher living in Atlanta, came to Dr. DuBose's defense in a statement Wednesday morning.

JUDGE PALMER'S INTERVIEW.

The interview of Judge Palmer reads as follows:

"There seems to be an effort on the part of some people to make it appear that the First Methodist church is agitated with the police board, and that an attempt is a great injustice to a great church.

"Last spring the board of stewards officially requested Dr. DuBose that if he thought the discipline of the church was being violated, he should follow the method pointed out in the discipline for dealing with such violators. When those resolutions were passed, a number of the stewards were members of locker clubs. Dr. DuBose was officially informed of the action of the stewards. So far as I am advised, Dr. DuBose has now complied with their request. I assert, therefore, that he believed it was not in his official position as pastor so to enforce the discipline, or else that the laws of the church in his opinion was not being violated.

"Let it be clearly understood that I am not discussing the merits or demerits of locker clubs or the liquor question. I am only making plain that our pastor apparently thinks the church law should be enforced, although he is responsible in his official capacity for such enforcement and is the only person under the discipline of the church who is authorized or has the right to admonish members on his board of stewards. It is fair to assume, therefore, that he honestly does not believe that membership in a locker club—although he characterizes a locker club as 'a cloaking infamy'—is any reason why such locker club member should not be nominated by him as a member of his board of stewards.

"A large number of the members of the First Methodist church do not believe their pastor should try to force people to live by methods of the official laws of the state, but the official laws of the state, but the official laws of the church is to endeavor to forward people to an acceptance of the Gospel.

"It must be distinctly understood that I am in no way defending the Christian gentlemen who are members of other clubs and who have been placed upon the board of stewards by Dr. DuBose.

"It is my understanding that a number of the stewards went to Marietta while conference was in session last week and indicated to the bishop that in their opinion it would be best for the church under all circumstances for a change to be made in the pastor."

JUDGE PALMER'S INTERVIEW.

Alderman Nutting, in an interview Wednesday morning, had the following to say:

"Dr. DuBose has brought about a situation most unfortunate for the church. He has split the church wide open without accomplishing any good result whatever. I understand several of the official members are going to ask for their letters of membership and go to other churches.

"Dr. DuBose seems to think he is living in the time of the Spanish Inquisition instead of the twentieth century. He starts in with his head full of ideas as to how he should do a certain way, and he will have them accordingly. In the methodist church the pastor has a great deal of authority, and if he chooses to be dictatorial and arbitrary he can get things very unpleasant.

"Dr. DuBose claims he did not drop the stewards in question because of their membership in locker clubs, yet that is a significant fact that among the dropped are several who have

MOVE ON FOOT TO ROB WOODWARD OF POLICE AUTHORITY

Resolution Will Be Offered to Take Appointment of Police Committee From Mayor's Hands

ATTEMPT TO ABOLISH BOARD WILL FOLLOW

Strong Fight Will Also Be Made to Override Veto of Resolution Censuring Police Board

The fight in the city council at its next meeting to override the mayor's veto of the resolution censuring the police board is going to be followed by the inauguration of a movement to abolish the police board and, still more important, by a resolution to curtail the mayor's power with the police department by taking the appointment of the police committee of council from his hands.

Alderman John S. Owens, of the Eighth ward, one of the signers of the resolution condemning the police board, of which Mayor Woodward is a member, declares that he favors such action by council, and, while he will not say that he will introduce the resolution, he says that there is little doubt that such a resolution will be properly introduced at the next meeting of council, which will be on December 2.

A charter amendment will be required to abolish the police board; therefore, any action by council could not become effective until after next summer's session of the state legislature, but the movement in that direction will begin at the next meeting of council.

SAYS COUNCIL HAS POWER.

While it is not known that the city attorney has rendered an opinion, Alderman Owens says that council has the power to vest in itself the appointment of the police or any other committee.

This would mean that if such a resolution is adopted by the general council the 1915 police committee may have a personnel and a chairman not in sympathy with the mayor's policy, and of course the chairman of the committee would also have a vote on the board of police commissioners.

A determined fight to override the mayor's veto of the resolution censuring the commission for its alleged violation of the Nating ordinance, providing that only men nominated by the head of a department can be elected by the controlling board as employees, is certain.

It is in his veto message on this resolution that Mayor Woodward suggests that if that ordinance is to remain in effect, council should abolish the boards.

While the mayor makes his suggestion general, Alderman Owens says that no immediate movement to abolish any but the police board is to be expected.

START WITH POLICE.

"Let us start with the police board," he says, "for I can't possibly see how the mayor or his friends could object to that. It is his own suggestion."

Referring to the proposed move, that to vest in council the right to name its own police committee, the alderman says: "The mayor is already burdened with many duties, and I think it would be well for council to relieve him of this one.

"It would be well for the appointment of this important committee to be left to council, for council is composed of thirty men, who are changing every year, and no one can then accuse council of an effort to build up a machine, something the people are likely to charge to the individual who names such a committee."

SIX WEEKS' BATTLE VIVIDLY DESCRIBED BY ARMY JOURNAL

Operations in Flanders, Disposition of Armies and Objects of Campaign Given by Official Sources

ALLIES HAD STEADY SUCCESS, IS CLAIM

Bulletin des Armees Says Germans Have Failed in Their Supreme Effort—Could Not Reach Channel Coast

Here is a detailed story of the military operations in western Europe, written for the French official army journal. For weeks we have had nothing beyond brief, disconnected bulletins and frequently contradictory reports. The account from Paris gives a picture of the situation for the past six weeks:

PARIS, Nov. 25.—The Bulletin des Armees today publishes a summary of the military operations of the last six weeks. This article follows:

"With the fresh success of the allies in the battle of Flanders, the moment has come to recite the accomplishments of the last six weeks. These may be summed up as follows:

"The formidable effort undertaken by the Germans during this time, first to turn our left wing and, second, to penetrate it, has resulted in failure. By this effort the enemy was endeavoring to make good the defeats on the Marne; instead, he only added another check to the check he suffered in September. Nevertheless, in order to flank us in accordance with its recognized method, the German general staff neglected nothing along that portion of the front extending from the River Lys to the sea. It massed between the beginning of October and the beginning of November four corps of cavalry and two armies, comprising in all fifteen army corps.

"The crown prince of Bavaria, General Von Fabeck, General Von Deming and the Duke of Wurtemberg, to stimulate the morale of their troops, issued several appeals and exhortations. We found their orders on officers who fell in battle or who were taken prisoners.

"MUST REACH COAST."

"All these documents agreed on a decisive action against the French left. It was necessary to penetrate to Dunkirk or to Ypres for the reason, according to one of these orders, that the decisive, delivered with all speed and carried through at all cost. It is desired to obtain a decision in the western arena of operations before again turning toward the adversary in the east.

"These various orders recited furthermore that Emperor William was there to animate his soldiers by his presence. He had announced that he wanted to be in Ypres on the first of November, and everything was prepared so that on that date there could be proclaimed the annexation of Belgium.

"In short, everything was provided for, every single thing except the victorious resistance of the allied army. To make this resistance possible it was necessary for us to oppose to the enemy, forces if not equal to his own, at least sufficient.

BELGIANS WORN OUT.

"What was then the situation at the beginning of October? The Belgian army, worn out of Antwerp battles, but too exhausted to take part in any maneuver. The English army was leaving its front on Aisne for a field of operations in the north. Transportation and the movements of supplies occasioned long delays. The army under General De Castelnau did not extend its left wing beyond a point south of Arras. The army of General De Maudhuy extended from this point to the south of Lille. Further on we had cavalry, territorials and marine fusiliers. This force was not sufficiently strong to enable General Foch, called by General Joffre to take command of the armies in the north, to break the wall of the enemy. Reinforcements were, therefore, sent him.

BY RAIL AND AUTO.

"Then for three weeks we saw the reign of the railroad and of the automobile. Day and night troops were being moved by these methods of transportation, and they arrived in time. Divisions and army corps, not so strong numerically as those of the enemy, but sustained by an admirable spirit, moved into action as they disembarked from the trains. For thirty days these divisions were at the front.

"About October 20 our front was outlined as follows: From Nieuport to Dixmude, one of our divisions of infantry and our marines held the railroad line, while the Belgian army was reorganizing itself in the rear; to the south of Dixmude we were installed along the canal, from here our line was extended to the east, making in front of Ypres a vast semi-circle held by four corps of the French army and one corps of the English army. The line then dropped to a point to the south of Messines and Armentieres, forming two salients, the first held by the remainder of the British army, and the second by ourselves.

"The German attack was an effort first to occupy Dunkirk and reach Calais or Boulogne. They tried to flank us, and to cut the direct communications of the British army with the seacoast. All the heavy artillery of the enemy brought from Antwerp was there ready to be used again.

"The beginning of the 5th of November the attacks were repulsed. From the railroad we marched toward the Yser, rolling up the enemy, who had succeeded in crossing to the left bank and drowning his rear guards in the floods. One can still see near Ramscapelle German cannon half buried in the mud, and corpses of German soldiers half submerged.

"Then the enemy, finding it impossible to get around our flank, endeavored to cut through. This was the battle of Ypres, an engagement desperate, furious and relentless. The German army hurled its units forward in dense

FRANK REMITTITUR HELD UP IN SUPREME COURT

Counsel Asks Delay Until Appeal to Full Bench in U. S. Court Monday

Counsel for Leo M. Frank will have an opportunity to present their petition for a writ of error to the United States supreme court before the remittitur from the federal court reaches the Fulton superior court.

The remittitur, it was stated at the office of the clerk of the state supreme court Wednesday, would not be sent down until next Tuesday. Reports from Washington are to the effect that Frank's attorneys plan to take their petition before the full bench of the federal supreme court Monday. If is understood that they have requested that the remittitur be held up until they have had an opportunity to take this action.

It appears the attorneys have abandoned the plan of taking the petition to each of the justices of the federal supreme court in turn, which, following Justice Lamar's refusal to allow the writ, it was reported from Washington they would do.

Henry C. Peeples, one of Frank's attorneys, returned from Washington at noon Wednesday to confer with Attorney John L. Tye, and other members of the condemned man's counsel. He stated he had not been definitely decided just what would be the next move. Mr. Peeples did not know whether he would return to Washington to assist in presenting the petition Monday. He said he would go back if he was summoned to do so.

Mr. Peeples said that in his statement declining the petition for a writ of error Justice Lamar made it clear that he had not considered the merits of the constitutional point urged, but that the question of practice was alone considered by him.

In its adverse decision on Frank's motion to set aside the verdict on the constitutional ground that he was not present in court when the verdict against him was rendered the state supreme court held that Frank should have made this point in his motion for a new trial, and should not have waited until after his new trial motion had been denied. This ruling by the state supreme court defined the practice in Georgia in such cases, and Justice Lamar declined the writ on the grounds that the constitutional point should have been made in accordance with the practice laid down in Georgia.

JAILED DAWSON NEGRO BARKS HIMSELF TO DEATH

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

DAWSON, Ga., Nov. 25.—A negro lunatic confined in the jail here, literally barked himself to death. For several days and nights he incessantly imitated a dog, at times snapping at persons, and seldom stopped long enough to partake of food. Many believed he had had hydrophobia, but physicians said not.

ZAPATA AND VILLA ARE NEARING GATES OF MEXICAN CAPITAL

Two Leaders, It Is Declared, Have Agreement to Enter Mexico City Together and Take Charge

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—Conflicting advices and uncertain communication with Mexico City caused doubt and apprehension today over what actually was occurring in the Mexican capital.

An official dispatch dated early yesterday said General Lucio Blanco had abandoned the city and that the Zapata forces were entering. A later dispatch, dated 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon, said that while General Blanco was not to be found, he was still reported to be somewhere in the capital, while his troops, however, were evacuating and taking property as they left.

The Zapata forces were then reported on the outside of the city, and it was understood that they were in agreement with the Villa forces not to enter the capital until the latter arrived.

This, the latest official dispatch pointed out, was uncertain, however, though the Brazilian minister had received assurances from the Zapatista chiefs that they would preserve order and give every protection to foreigners.

Mobs Rout Mexico City Police and Rob Stores

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 25.—Serious disorder occurred in the capital Tuesday night when a mob gathered in front of the National palace.

Later they marched to stores where arms and ammunition were kept, battered down the doors and sacked the places of their contents.

There was much shooting but thus far according to reports the casualties are few.

The trouble began at 6 o'clock in the evening and continued until a late hour. All street car traffic was stopped except the Red Cross service which was taking care of dead and wounded brought in from the fighting around Tacubaya.

At 8 o'clock bodies of civilians and former federal soldiers were formed. They paraded the principal streets and marched to the police headquarters and the Brazilian legation where they were armed.

The unrestricted looting indicated that all of the organized constitutional forces have left the city either to meet the forces of General Villa, coming from the north, or those of General Zapata, which have been threatening the capital from the south.

The fighting at Tacubaya, which is only five miles southwest of Mexico City, show that the Zapata forces are virtually at the doors of the capital.

General Blanco and a force of several thousand men composed the last organ-

ATLANTA MAN'S BROTHER AND NIECE ARE MURDERED

A. A. Boggs, Brother of G. H. Boggs, of Tech, and Daughter Slain in Miami

An Associated Press dispatch to The Journal Wednesday from Miami, Fla., reports that A. A. Boggs, a prominent lawyer of that city, and his eighteen-year-old daughter, Miss Marjorie Boggs, were found murdered in the ruins of their country home near Miami early Wednesday morning.

The murdered man was a brother of Prof. G. H. Boggs, of the faculty of the Georgia School of Technology, who lives at 79 West North avenue, Atlanta, and was a son of Dr. W. E. Boggs, former chancellor of the University of Georgia, who is spending the winter with Prof. Boggs.

The bodies were found by neighbors, who were attracted by the fire, which they tried in vain to extinguish. Mystery shrouds the crime and the motive. The skulls of both victims had been crushed by some heavy, blunt instrument, and both were found near the front door of the house. Miss Boggs had attended a party in the neighborhood Tuesday night, returning home shortly after midnight. Her charred remains indicated that she was fully dressed when the fatal blow was struck.

Mrs. Boggs is in Lake Placid, N. Y., visiting her son, who is attending the Lake Placid preparatory school.

Mr. Boggs was forty-five years of age and was a graduate of the University of Georgia in the class of 1892. He was one of the most prominent lawyers of his section of the state. He leaves, besides his brother and father above named, two other brothers and one sister, as follows: T. R. Boggs, a physician of Baltimore; L. H. Boggs, a lawyer of Jacksonville, and Miss M. A. Boggs, whose home is with Prof. G. H. Boggs in Atlanta.

Rev. W. E. Boggs, D. D., was chancellor of the University of Georgia from 1859 to 1899. He is a Presbyterian minister and makes his home at Waynesville, N. C., except during the winter, when he lives with Prof. Boggs in this city.

The family here were informed of the double murder by the local office of the Associated Press. Other than the facts above stated, they have no details. Prof. Boggs stated that he was absolutely at a loss to explain the crime or its motive. He said his brother in Jacksonville, L. H. Boggs, will go to Miami at once, and that funeral arrangements will be announced later.

RUSSIANS CONTINUE SUCCESSES IN EAST

Turkish Troops Bring Up Heavy Artillery and Plan to Destroy Suez Canal, Bottling Up British Warships

(By Associated Press.)

BERLIN, Nov. 25.—(By Wireless to Sayville.)—The British Indian troops along the Suez canal have been defeated, according to a report from Milan, and the Turks are advancing with heavy batteries to destroy the constructive works of the canal and bottle up the British warships now in the water way.

Naval Base of Germans Destroyed by Allied Fleet

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, Nov. 25.—The destruction of Germany's rudimentary naval base at Zeebrugge by shell fire from British and French warships, together with Germany's grim preparation for her renewed attempts to crush a way through the allied line to the French coast, were the most significant features in the news coming to hand today from the western arena of war.

In the east the situation as regards the Russian and German armies in Poland remains a little obscure. The Germans, on the one hand are not denying that the advance of General Von Hindenburg has been checked, while the Russian war office, on the other hand, although not issuing an extended statement, claims a decisive victory.

With the sinking of two submarines which the Germans had been so laboriously assembling at Zeebrugge, the allied fleet has been reported ready at that point on the coast. It is now felt there is little danger of an undersea raid, and as additional news dispatches are received from the other side of the channel, it is apparent that the damage inflicted by the fire of the warships at Zeebrugge was far more extensive than was at first supposed.

Some reports received in London set forth that the Germans already have started another attack upon the allied front in Flanders, which will be more intense and formidable than any hitherto undertaken. It is apparent that the Germans have been carefully preparing for this move for some days past.

The situation precludes the possibility of a concert attack, and it is said that the invaders have gone further with their plans quite openly, keeping secret only the point where they purposed to center their offensive movements. It is the opinion of military observers here that the latest onslaught will be particularly menacing.

The Germans, profiting by the mistakes heretofore made, will keep far enough away from the coast to avoid the naval guns and will not waste their energy by advancing at several points at the same time, but will concentrate all their efforts on one spot where they hope to break through by sheer weight of numbers.

Having shattered the Prussian guard, however, when it essayed the feat, the allies say they have every reason to face the present situation with confidence.

Russians Claim Advances; Germans Claim Same Thing

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—Reports from Russian sources during the last two days of an impending victory in the war with Austria and Germany are at variance with an official statement today from Berlin. While the German military authorities stated previously that the advance toward Warsaw had been checked by the arrival of Russian reinforcements, there was no indication in today's statement that any decisive results had been attained by either of the warring forces.

The official statement speaks confidently of the German operations in the region of the Vistula and the offensive Russian movement between the Vistula and Warta rivers, the scene of the main action, last week. To the north, in East Prussia, it is said, all Russian attacks were repulsed, while similar results are reported to have attended the efforts of the enemy to break through in the movement against Cracow and the Silesian frontier of Germany.

Later advices from Petrograd made no departure from previous claims of important successes, that the situation in the east remained obscure.

Today's official communication from Paris, Berlin and London concerning the situation in Belgium and France gave partial confirmation of private reports that the Germans were beginning another great effort to smash through their way to the English channel. Both the British and French statements mention fighting along the line south of Ypres, Belgium.

The French war office states that some ground was gained by the allies between Langemarck and Zonnebecke, a small Belgian towns northeast of Ypres.

To the south, in the vicinity of La Bassee, it is said that trenches wrested from the British were recaptured by the Indian troops. Heavy fighting continues in the Argonne, the outcome of which may decide the fate of Verdun, while German attacks near Verdun are said to have been repulsed.

The German official communication stated that aside from some progress

MR. E. S. HARTMAN IS GOING OUT OF BUSINESS

Popular Gents' Furnishing Store at 6 Peachtree Street Closes This Week

There is no more popular men's store in the city of Atlanta than Hartman's. Mr. E. S. Hartman has been in business in Atlanta for the past nine years and his gents' furnishings store, at No. 6 Peachtree, has been the Mecca for men who care for the better class of furnishings—and who at the same time take a genuine pleasure in buying where they know they are not being overcharged.

Hartman's has been more than merely a gents' furnishings store—it has been an Atlanta institution, and there will be many a friend of this store who will sincerely regret to read the news that Hartman is going out of business. Men who have regularly bought from a store for nearly a decade do not easily break away from it—nor do they like to see such stores go out of business. Now, however, that Hartman's is to go out of business, and that right away, there will be many hundreds of men in Atlanta who will flock to this store to buy the dependable goods that are to be sold there at this sale. The men of Atlanta know what Hartman's has been and is, they know the quality that for nine years has gone with every Hartman article of men's wearing apparel, and they know that goods reduced at Hartman's will be genuine bargains.

The store has been closed since this morning and will remain closed until Friday morning. It was decided to take two days in which to mark down every article of wearing apparel in the store, so that there would be no delay when the sale opens Friday morning. This is no removal sale, it is no temporary suspension of business—it is simply a straight sale of all the goods in the store. A committee representing the creditors of the Hartman store has taken charge and everything will be sold. The fixtures are to be sold also, so, while the hundreds of friends and patrons of this long established, popular store will regret exceedingly to know that it is to go out of business, they will naturally take advantage of the opportunity to buy at such a saving.

SCHOOL BOARD BELIEVES BONDS ARE IMPERATIVE

Vacation and Intermediate Schools Urged in Resolutions by Mayor Guinn

Members of the board of education, who at Tuesday's meeting informally discussed without definite action, the general needs of the city school department, agreed that a bond issue only could adequately care for the needs of the schools now. It is not considered probable that a sufficient amount of money to make necessary permanent improvements can be secured from the city's current revenue.

The movement for bonds has gained little momentum lately, however, and the special bond committee appointed by council, of which Alderman John S. Candler is chairman, has held only one meeting. At its next meeting a subcommittee headed by Alderman J. R. Nutting, will report and then the needs of the school department will be presented to the main committee.

Alderman Jesse W. Armistead, chairman of the school committee, and the man whose task it is to get sufficient money from council to run the department, states the department will ask for bonds in the sum of $1,250,000.

$250,000 IS NEEDED.

In a general way he says that $250,000 is needed for the erection of six badly needed twelve-room grammar schools, which would enable the board of education to eliminate the poorly heated and poorly ventilated "residence schools." Approximately $1,000,000, he says, is needed for the four high schools. The high school situation particularly is worrying the board members, for they say extreme congestion is probable next year.

While Mr. Armistead says a bond issue is the only adequate solution of the school problem in the city, he points out that the movement for bonds is still in its infancy, and if it is recommended by council it will still remain for the needed twelve-room grammar schools. People to say whether or not an issue will be passed next year.

"Therefore the school department will be dependent for relief on the amount of money it can secure through council from the city's current revenue. Mr. Armistead says he hopes and believes council will appropriate $100,000 to the department for permanent improvements, but this will not go very far toward placing the department on the desired basis, still it will give the board facilities to seat all children.

Superintendent W. M. Slaton read to the board Tuesday his tentative plans for permanent improvements based on the idea of securing $1,500,000 from the proposed bond issue.

PLAN FOR IMPROVEMENTS.

This plan was not adopted at the board meeting, and according to the statement to board members should it ever become necessary to act formally on the plan, there will be a number of changes. The list as prepared, however, is:

Girls' English Commercial high school, at Washington street and Woodward avenue, $100,000.

Girls' High school, $250,000.

Boys' High school addition and annex, $100,000.

Tech High, $150,000.

White grammar schools:

Ten-room building in Spring street, $45,000.

Lot and twelve-room building at Moreland and Euclid avenues, $50,000.

Ten-room building in East Atlanta, $45,000.

Eight-room building near Pearl and Gaskill streets, $40,000.

Eight-room building in Milton avenue, $25,000.

Eight-room addition to Crew street school, $35,000.

Lot and six-room building in Capitol View, $30,000.

Lot and eight-room building in Oakland City, $35,000.

Lot and ten-room building to replace the present Battle Hill school, $50,000.

Six-room annex to English avenue school, $25,000.

Building at the Exposition Cotton mills, $28,000.

Building in Howell Station, $26,500.

Interest in connection with the discussion of the school situation is the estimate of Miss Jessie Muse, principal of the Girls' High school, that next September 600 girls will be unable to obtain seats in the school. She bases the estimate on the number of girls in the high school this year, who will probably be there next year, and the number of girls who will be promoted from the grammar schools.

Mrs. F. O. Spain, principal of the Tenth Street school, was before the board Tuesday to tell of congested conditions there. To relieve congestion at Tenth street Mrs. Spain suggested building an open air annex to the school, similar to the one now at the Lee street school.

TWO RESOLUTIONS.

Two very important resolutions bearing directly and definitely upon the question of developing and enlarging the public school system of Atlanta were introduced at yesterday's session of the Board of Education. These resolutions, at the request of Mr. Gwinn, the author, were referred to the committee on schools and teachers and will be reported for action at the December meeting. The first resolution calls for the establishment of vacation schools. Speaking of the resolution Major Guin said:

"The need for vacation schools and their importance can only be appreciated when it is understood that in former years about ten per cent of the children in the grammar schools fail of promotion, which means that some ten or twelve hundred children are required to repeat the grades. In practically every case it is wholly unnecessary to give an entire year to these children as their deficiency could be supplied with a few weeks' of coaching and further training.

"If the vacation schools are established, children who fail of promotion at the close of the schools in June will be required to continue their studies in the vacation schools until they are prepared for the next grade work. The vacation schools will also afford an opportunity for further instructions to a large number of children in the city who can only attend school for a few years, and the board feels such children should be allowed the opportunity of getting in all the school work possible during the years they can be spared for education development.

"The vacation schools will meet another purpose, namely: there are many exceptionally bright children who can by taking advantage of the vacation schools skip a whole grade and thus shorten their grammar school course.

"Meeting all of these purposes, it is believed that the vacation schools will be a distinct economy not only to the children but to the city as well."

The second resolution bears upon the

TWO ATLANTIANS NAMED ON BELGIAN COMMITTEE

Five Other Prominent Georgians Complete Body to Direct Immigration

A committee of seven prominent Georgians was appointed Tuesday afternoon by the Belgian immigration conference at the Piedmont hotel to perfect detailed plans for bringing Belgian refugees to Georgia.

The committee is composed of the following: R. F. Shedden, Atlanta; John D. Little, Atlanta; F. M. Oliver, Savannah; S. B. Brown, Albany; Royal Daniel, Quitman; W. P. Delaperriere, Hoschton; B. S. Barker, Gainesville; A. B. Moore, Savannah.

Resolutions passed by the conference instruct the committee as follows:

"1. To find out if under the laws the immigration movement can be carried out, and if so, how.

"2. If the plans are legal, can the movement be financed, and if so, how.

"3. Power is given them to select officers and fill vacancies in their committee and to proceed with the incorporation, if it is deemed wise to do so."

RED MEN WILL HOLD JOINT MEETING HERE

Representatives from the various tribes of the Improved Order of Red Men in and around Atlanta will meet Thursday night at the wigwam on Central avenue for the conferring of degree ceremonies by select teams.

The meeting is in the nature of a joint gathering from the Blue Ridge and Stone Mountain districts, and will be one of the largest of the year. Among those present will be J. R. Miller, great sachem of Georgia Red Men; W. C. Hendrix, great senior sagamore of the state, and T. H. Jeffries, great senior sagamore of the United States.

Y. M. C. A. THANKSGIVING DINNER IS ARRANGED

A full program has been arranged at the Young Men's Christian association building, 75 Luckie street, for Thanksgiving. A big Thanksgiving dinner will be served by the ladies' auxiliary to members and their friends. A department from the regular program is being made and ladies are cordially invited. Quite a number have made reservations. Dinner will be served from 12:30 to 1 o'clock in the dining room on the first floor.

subject of the re-classification of schools, and provides that there shall be primary, intermediate, and high schools.

The primary schools are intended to accommodate the first four grades, and the intermediate schools the upper grades of the grammar schools.

"If this resolution is adopted," says Major Guinn, "it will mean that centrally located intermediate schools will be established in the various sections of the city wherein will be taught the fifth, sixth and seventh grades. Grouped around these will be the primary schools accommodating the lower grades. In putting this system into effect, due regard will be had to all the present buildings and they will of course be utilized to capacity.

"Some of the advantages to be gained by this plan are that the very small children will be taught in groups to themselves and their schools will be located very conveniently to their homes. When the primary grades have been finished, then all the children from all the primary schools in a given district will be promoted to the intermediate schools, thus making it possible to very economically handle the teaching of the children and to give the shorter walk to the smaller children. Educators contend that it is always best when it can possibly be arranged to teach the very small children together and to avoid any bad influence that might accrue in the indiscriminate mixture of six-year-old children with those in the teen age.

"Upon the adoption of these resolution will, in a large measure, depend the expense necessary to take care of the improvements now contemplated in the school system."

That's our work.

So is it your grocer's, your butcher's.

But you control the quality and price of our wares, through your chosen public officers. Ours is defined as a "public" service.

It might be half-hearted—but it isn't. You know that! It is public service done by a private business. Therefore it must yield fair return. It can't, without your good will. It can't win and keep that unless it is good service.

But go further. There are other incentives. Not the least is the satisfaction of work well done. We're human and conscientious, just like you! Another is the fear of punishment. Human again!

What's the punishment we fear? We do business with your permission, called a franchise. It will have to be renewed some distant day. If it isn't, our investment becomes junk. We have to ask you for extensions. If they're refused our business dries up. We have to obey your city laws. They can be made too drastic to work under.

We've got in another form your permission to do business. That's the state charter. Its revocation would paralyze us.

Beyond all these is a compulsion to give good service. Your railroad commission supervises our work, our methods, our rules, our fares and rates, our capital, our earnings.

Can we succeed without your good will?

No more than you can breathe without air.

A. F. COSBY IS HELD ON MURDER CHARGE

Young Man Bound Over for Shooting John Bray in Fight Last Week

After a hearing Wednesday morning before Municipal Court Judge M. D. Ridley in a courtroom packed to the walls with spectators, A. F. Cosby, twenty-one years old, was held for the grand jury on the charge of murdering John Bray, a telegraph operator, of Salina, Thursday night in front of the Thrower building, on East Mitchell street.

The only eye-witness testifying was Gertrude Hansford, colored, employed by the Southern Bell Telephone company. She said she was at a third-floor window of the company's offices directly across Mitchell street when Bray was shot. Bray and Cosby came out of the entrance to the Owls' club together, she said, about 9:45 o'clock Thursday night; they commenced fighting on the sidewalk, she testified, and Bray hurled Cosby down, climbed on top of him and was pounding him in the head, when Cosby pulled a gun and fired upward three times. Each bullet found a mark in Bray's body, and he died a few minutes later.

Jack Diamond, an employe of the Atlanta Gas Light company, who boards at the Telford house, 46 East Mitchell, across the street from the club, testified he heard three shots in rapid succession; he looked out and saw, he said, Cosby on top of the dying Bray. Cosby's face was bloody, said Diamond, and his hair was matted with blood. Cosby arose and walked down an alley between the Thrower building and the McKee building, said Diamond. It was in the alley, resting on a window sill, that the police found the .38-caliber revolver with three chambers empty.

Ed K. Smith, who also boards at the Telford house, said he ran across the street after hearing the shots. He said Cosby came out of the alley, walked up to the group of men and women who had gathered around the dying man on the sidewalk, and said: "You can search me and see if I have anything on me." The police patrol, full of observers, arrived about fifteen minutes after the shooting, said Smith. Cosby was arrested and held on a charge of murder. Later a warrant was sworn out in Judge Ridley's court. He was taken back to jail Wednesday, and will be held without bond for the grand jury.

Sam Hewlett, attorney for Cosby, urged the court to permit the accused man to make bond and to hold him on the charge of manslaughter. The testimony of the negro woman eye-witness, said Mr. Hewlett, was insufficient to show that the shooting was caused by Bray's beating Cosby.

Attorney John W. Moore, prosecuted the case for the state. The revolver with which the shooting was alleged to have been done was the only exhibit in court. It was identified by Call Officer Gantt as the one found in the alley. John Hill, colored, elevator boy for the Welch club, testified that both Cosby and Bray had been drinking.

After the hearing, scores of Cosby's friends crowded around him and shook his hand.

FIANCE LOST IN ATLANTA RESTORED TO SWEETHEART

Toccoa, Ga., Railroad Man Found in Movie Show in Dazed Condition

Lost in Atlanta, where he had come with his fiancee to buy furnishings for their house just before the wedding day on Thursday of this week, John N. Kibs, engineer and conductor of Toccoa, Ga., was found in the Old Mill picture show on Whitehall street by two friends Tuesday night. He appeared to be temporarily dazed and could give no lucid account of what happened to him after he parted with his sweetheart, Miss Georgia Carter, of Toccoa, last Monday.

A doctor who examined him said he found no traces of his being drugged, but that he had a weak heart and this might has caused him to wander around the streets in a daze. King returned to Toccoa Tuesday night.

The announcement came from Toccoa Wednesday that Miss Carter and King will be married Thanksgiving night as they had originally planned, despite the mishap to the latter.

FINAL PLANS PERFECTED FOR DECEMBER CARNIVAL

Success of Big Hog and Hominy Celebration Next Month Is Assured

The entire membership of the Atlanta Ad Men's club met at noon Wednesday in the Winecoff hotel and perfected final plans for the big hog and hominy carnival to be held in Atlanta on the afternoon and evening of December 3. The success of the carnival is assured, since it has behind it the co-operation of virtually every manufacturing, mercantile and commercial organization in the city. The railroads have also given it their full indorsement, and have arranged for special rates to attract visitors from virtually every point in Georgia.

It was announced at the meeting that the race for queen of the carnival, in which have been entered twelve of Atlanta's most popular debutantes, has developed into a neck-and-neck affair, with friends of each of the young women busy at the prominent club drumming up votes for their favorite candidate. The ballot box at Cone's Whitehall street drug store has been filled and refilled with votes and it is keeping a clerk busy getting the daily line of voters in order so that they may record their ballots. One of the young women, Miss Louise Parker, is ill at her home from an attack of typhoid fever.

Major Woodward has declared a half holiday for the afternoon of December 3, while the spectacular pageant is under way. He and his cabinet will take part in the procession along with representatives of virtually every civic, military, fraternal and business organization and floats of every description—fifty of them—will be in the line of march to compete for the many prizes offered by the Ad Men's club. The carnival ball in the evening, with the crowning of the queen, is expected to be the greatest public reception of its sort ever held in Atlanta. Fifteen hundred dancers will be on the floor.

Heads of the big retail stores are considering closing their shops on parade day. They realize the importance of the carnival as a "boost" for Atlanta-made goods and have expressed their desire to co-operate in every way to make the carnival a big success.

There is every quality to the bill of vaudeville at the Forsyth this week that appeals to the people who seek refreshing real entertainment. There is nothing to worry about, but everything to bring happiness. There is a style of variety that makes things interesting and there is comedy that entertains. In all, the bill is up to that standard that has made the Forsyth such a deservedly popular and busy institution.

Han Ping Cheng, the Chinese wizard who for eleven weeks has startled the American people, presents the most remarkable magic act seen here in vaudeville. He and his cunning assistants present a performance lasting half an hour and there is not a moment of waste in all that time. Some of the tricks are marvelous and along the whole time there is comedy that makes the act all the better.

Homer Lind and company, Doris Wilson and company, Will Rawls and Ella Von Kaufman and Melville and Higgins contribute to the success of the week.

YOUTH IS CHARGED WITH MURDER OF HIS FATHER

William C. Burton Accused of Killing His Parent in Order to Rob Him

ROME, Ga., Nov. 25.—William C. Burton, a youth of twenty-two, is in jail at Centre, Ala., charged with the murder of his father, James Burton, aged fifty-five, in the public road near Centre, just across the Georgia line. The elder Burton was shot Monday, and since that time posses have been scouring the mountains for his assassin.

Young Burton girst stated that his father was shot by a highwayman who stopped their buggy and asked him for a match, then shot him down without warning and took a large roll of money, the result of the sale of some horses. He was unable, he said, to give a description of the assassin other than he was a young man wearing overalls. Later, it is claimed, he amended his story by stating that he had found the money at home and the father had lost only $7.

Young Burton's pistol was found near the scene of the crime, by the side of the road, and his reported conflicting stories caused his arrest.

LOCKER CLUB EVIDENCE NOT GIVEN BY DR. DUBOSE

Dr. Eichelberger Says He, and Not First Methodist Pastor, Aided Solicitor Dorsey

Dr. G. W. Eichelberger, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league, furnished a written statement to The Journal Wednesday morning to the effect that he, and not Dr. H. M. DuBose, pastor of the First Methodist church, furnished the evidence on which Solicitor Dorsey drew bills of indictment against six locker clubs of Atlanta and presented them to the grand jury Tuesday.

"Dr. DuBose is amply able to take care of himself," said Dr. Eichberger, "but I find he is absent from the city and it is only just for me to say he had absolutely nothin gto do with the presentments Tuesday.

"I found in my desk a large roll of federal certificates granting locker clubs of this city permission to be 'liquor dealers.' They had been secured by the Anti-Saloon league several months ago. I took them myself Tuesday morning to the solicitor's office and delivered them to him."

Geen very outspoken in their opposition to Dr. DuBose's methods. The business of a pastor of a Methodist church is not to enforce the criminal laws. That is the business of the police. It is a pastor's duty to enforce the laws of the church, which are laid down plainly in the discipline, with the method of enforcement plainly prescribed. Dr. DuBose has not proceeded in the manner prescribed by the discipline. If he would attend to the spiritual welfare of his congregation and work to build up the church, he would accomplish a great deal more good.

"I think Dr. DuBose is thoroughly enjoying the notoriety he is getting, for he is a great lover of the limelight. I have suggested to some of the preachers of the conference that there should be a new department created in the Methodist church, to be known as the department of publicity, and that Dr. DuBose would be an ideal man to place in charge of it. I have no personal feeling whatever against Dr. DuBose. His tactics would be amusing—if they were not fraught with serious consequences for the church."

Dr. DuBose is out of the city Wednesday and could not be reached for a reply to the views expressed by Judge Palmer and Attorney Nutting.

Leave Church or Quit Locker Club, Says Cary

"Editor The Journal: Concerning the First Methodist church situation and its honored pastor, Rev. H. M. DuBose, I have a word or two to say. By the decision of the late Rev. W. P. Lovejoy, I was recognized as a member of the quarterly conference of that church, by virtue of my official connection with Asbury Methodist church. I was present at both the fourth quarterly conference and at its adjourned session, when the stewards elected Judge Palmer for wise reasons I asked to be relieved of voting upon the question.

"For one, both as a member of the North Georgia Conference and as connected officially with the quarterly conference, I shall not quietly sit down and see that fearless man of God, Rev. H. M. DuBose, worthy of all respect, censured and held up for condemnation, when he has simply done what any other Methodist preacher should have done, who had a conscience, under similar circumstances.

"First, let it be known that Dr. DuBose simply acted out the explicit and plain declarations of the North Georgia conference, I shall not quietly sit down and see that fearless man of God, Rev. H. M. DuBose, worthy of all respect, censured and held up for condemnation, when he has simply done what any other Methodist preacher should have done, who had a conscience, under similar circumstances.

"First, let it be known that Dr. DuBose simply acted out the explicit and plain declarations of the North Georgia conference, at both its sessions—one year ago at Elberton on locker clubs, and again at Marietta, a few days ago. There was not a single dissenting vote against the report on temperance which condemned membership in locker clubs, without equivocation or reservation, and this is the official action of the North Georgia Conference. Wherein has Dr. DuBose acted so very unwisely? And why should he be held up publicly to censure simply because he dared to act out those expressions of the North Georgia Conference? Are locker clubs such wonderfully sacred institutions that the Methodist church must compromise with whisky selling and whisky drinking? Are members in these liquor clubs of such great importance that a Methodist preacher must gag on his mouth about such scandalous un-Methodistic alliance with the liquor traffic? And must he be condemned because he presumed to nominate those for stewards whom he in his godly judgment thought best fitted for this important official position?

"Let the public be definitely informed that the North Georgia conference is officially back of the action of Dr. DuBose, for he is but the agent and servant of that body in his open opposition to locker clubs. And there is no need for him to take the back track or compromise in this matter. Moreover, Bishop Denny, I judge, will promptly cognizant of this situation at First Methodist church when he returned Dr. DuBose as its pastor for another year. So that if Dr. DuBose is to be condemned for his nominations of stewards, the quarterly conference is equally blamable. Query—Why do not those Methodist men who rush into print to condemn their pastor be consistent, and censure their brethren of the quarterly conference for voting to leave them off the board of stewards? Why seek to make Dr. DuBose the scape goat? His nominations were unanimously confirmed.

"If these men who are so swift to condemn Dr. DuBose or others think for a moment that Dr. DuBose is alone in his position, they are very much mistaken. Numbers of laymen and ministers both in and out of Atlanta are in full sympathy with this faithful and brave Methodist pastor, who dares to sever the alliance of the Methodist church with locker clubs, a scandal in the church, and when they criticise him, they likewise criticise many others, together with the North Georgia conference, who are back of him.

"Let the assurance that the solution of this problem about which so much noise is being made, is very simple, and its solution is not in Dr. DuBose taking the back track, nor in shutting his mouth about the liquor question. But its solution is in the hands of Messrs. Palmer, Maddox, Nutting and their associates in the locker clubs. If they are loyal to the Methodist church, let them quietly withdraw from the locker clubs, and place themselves in accord with the openly declared sentiments of the North Georgia conference, then will there be peace in the First Methodist church. Or, if they prefer membership in locker clubs to membership in the Methodist church, let them do just what every intelligent and honest man should do—quietly withdraw from the Methodist church, retain membership in these notorious locker clubs, in alliance with the whisky traffic.

"Let the line be drawn, and let each man take his position on one side or the other. There are but two sides—the side of the liquor clubs, or that of the Methodist church. Dr. DuBose has taken the side of his church. Let others decide on which side they will go.

"CLEMENT C. CARY."

Thanksgiving to Be Fair and Warmer Weather Man Says

Fair skies, gentle breezes and a moderate temperature will conspire to make for a pleasant and profitable observance of Thanksgiving day in Atlanta. The weather man Wednesday morning declared the threatened rain was lost en route to Georgia, and added that the temperature for Thanksgiving promised to range from 45 to 75 degrees during the day.

Many of the city churches plan to hold regular Thanksgiving services in the forenoon, and after turkey dinners Atlanta will be treated to a multitude of outdoor sports and diversions.

A special service has been arranged for the First Presbyterian church. All the Presbyterians of the city have joined in planning a union service, beginning at 10:30 o'clock. Dr. Lyons will preach the Thanksgiving sermon, and Dr. Ogden will speak of the National Institute, following which a special collection will be taken up for the valley school.

Eating When Others Are Through

Is Not Gluttony, But Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, Will Enable You to Have Such an Appetite.

In these days of high pressure most men and women eat very little and a good old fashioned eater sits at table after all have left it.

The best way to get such an appetite is the Stuart way—the natural way.

Landlady: "Ever since Jones took Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets I've lost money on him."

If your stomach can not digest your food, what will? Where's the relief? The answer is in Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, because, as all stomach troubles arise from indigestion and because one ingredient of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets is able to thoroughly and completely digest 3,000 grains of food, doesn't it stand to reason that these tablets are going to digest all the food and whatever food you put into your stomach.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are carefully made to supply every element lacking in a system afflicted with dyspepsia, indigestion, gastritis, stomach trouble, etc., and to aid healthly systems to digest difficult food at unseemly hours.

Just carry one of these little tablets in your purse or pocket. After every meal, no matter when eaten, you have always at hand the assistance that nature will relish and thrive upon.

In this manner one may eat all manner of food, attend late dinners, etc., and feel no serious results afterwards.

Thousands of travelers always have a box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets in their grips and are thus enabled to eat unaccustomed meals at any and all times.

Surely there is nothing so well adapted to sufferers from food follies as Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, and the greatest proof of this fact lies in the assurance that one can purchase a box at any drug store anywhere in this country.

A small sample package of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will be mailed free to anyone who will address F. A. Stuart Co., 150 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich. (Advt.)

HAS A CURE FOR PELLAGRA

Parrie Nicholas, Laurel, Miss., writes: "Seems to me if I had not obtained your remedy when I did I would not have lived much longer. I am glad you discovered this wonderful remedy that cures Pellagra. When I began taking Baughn's Pellagra Remedy my weight was 60-odd pounds; now it is 100. I would like to have this published and sent to sufferers of Pellagra."

This is published at her request. If you suffer from Pellagra or know of anyone who suffers from Pellagra, it is your duty to consult the resourceful Baughn, who has fought and conquered the dreaded malady right in the Pellagra belt of Alabama.

The symptoms—hands red like sunburn, skin peeling off; sore mouth, the tip and sides of tongue a flaming red, with much mucous and choking; indigestion and nausea, either diarrhoea or constipation.

LAW IS DRAWN ON DEALERS IN GASOLINE

Complaints That Specific Gravity Is Not Always Shown Are Investigated

Preliminary to the inauguration of an especially vigorous campaign against dealers who violate the law requiring the display of truthful signs showing the specific gravity of gasoline offered by them for sale, State Oil inspector W. C. Bryant has mailed the following circular letter to all oil inspectors:

"Your attention is called to the fact that complaints are being made to this office almost daily by dealers in gasoline, automobile owners and others that the act regulating the inspection and sale of gasoline, benzine and naphtha in this state is being flagrantly violated.

"It is your sworn duty to see to it that all of those who violate this law are prosecuted, and, under the law, you are subject to indictment and prosecution should you fail to perform your duty.

"The law requires that dealers in gasoline, benzine or naphtha shall label by casks, barrels or packages containing these fluids with red letters at least one and one-half inches in size, denoting the gravity. This is the only protection the consumer has against unscrupulous dealers, and the duties of both the inspectors and dealers are plain.

"I understand that it is the custom with wholesale dealers to sell their products on an indeterminate basis and that retail dealers, in many cases, post this indefinite gravity at points of delivery.

"The law clearly states that the actual gravity must be displayed, and any sign reading 'Gravity 60 to 62,' '62 to 68 to 70,' is an illegal one. A gasoline is either '60 or 62' degrame, and not '60 to 62.'"

PLENTY OF GAME FOR THANKSGIVING HUNTING

Wood and Fields Are Filled With Wild Game and Birds

Early reports received by State Game Commissioner Charles L. Davis indicate that the present game season, which opened last Friday, will be one of the most successful in many years. Game of all kinds is reported to be plentiful and the fields and woods are likely to be filled with hunters tomorrow, Thanksgiving day.

Quail, wild turkey and wild ducks are reported in abundance in some sections of the state and every day brings news of the killing of deer and bears.

Commissioner Davis has been advised that a day or two ago N. L. Taylor killed a 150-pound buck deer on Shell Stone creek, six miles from Cochran. This was the first deer killed in the new county of Bleckley.

A few days ago a party of hunters killed a big black bear near Frederica, on St. Simons island. The bear weighed 425 pounds. Other bears have been seen in the same locality.

Wild ducks by the thousands are reported on Banks' pond, in Berrien county.

NEGRESS' BODY FOUND NEAR FEDERAL PRISON

Supposedly another victim of a negro "Jack the Ripper," the body of a young colored girl, badly decomposed and partly burned, was discovered Wednesday morning in a hole in the woods near the federal prison by J. L. Veal, 49 Logan avenue. Veal reported his find to the county police, and Officer C. C. Heard was assigned to the case. Two other dead negro women, with their bodies burnt or cut, were found a month ago not far from the federal prison.

Row Over Old Brindle, Bob-Tailed Cow, Holds Court Several Hours

To settle a dispute centering around an eight-year old brindle cow, bob-tailed, crumpled-horned, and dry, Judge John R. Wilkinson, ordinary of Fulton county, Wednesday morning took three hours away from his work on wills and marriages and sat, for the first time in his fourteen years as ordinary, to judge a case under the Georgia estray laws.

The cow, one of eight sister animals, belongs to R. O. Rivers, a dairyman of South Boulevard, outside of the city limits near the federal prison. Joe Barnett, a neighbor with a patch of peas was the complaining litigant.

Barnett, a month ago, seized and impounded eight of Rivers' cows, claiming they ate enormous quantities of the said peas after invading the patch. Rivers paid $4 for damages, and got seven cows back. Barnett, claiming Rivers still owed him $5, won an agreement to pay $10 damages, held the bob-tailed beast as surety. But the brindled bossy had to eat, and, said Barnett, she ate at the rate of 25 cents a day, making her board bill for the month $7.50. When Rivers refused to pay this and the $6 claimed, Barnett went to court.

Under Georgia statutes, the county commissioners of Fulton and the ordinary have concurrent jurisdiction in such matters—so Judge Wilkinson set aside his other work and devoted his whole attention to this case. A host of witnesses and two attorneys kept things humming for three hours, after which the judge ruled that Rivers pay $3.50 more and call the affair settled.

"I'll throw court costs in the bargain," said Judge Wilkinson, "and won't charge either of you anything."

Barnett, in testifying, cast aspersions at Rivers' cows. He said all eight of them didn't give but four quarts of milk a day, and that the brindle one was totally dry. Rivers tossed back aspersions by asserting that Barnett's eight acres of peas didn't yield but five bushels.

MOTORCYCLE AND AUTO COLLIDE ON PEACHTREE

Rider Is Slightly Hurt, but Couple in Touring Car Escapes Injury

Speeding out North Boulevard in a five-passenger touring car on their way to attend the funeral of Mrs. Frances Gober at Roswell, Ga., Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Gober, of Atlanta, collided with a motorcycle driven by L. B. Smith at the corner of Ponce de Leon avenue and Peachtree street.

The shock hurled Smith from the machine, which was coming up the hill from Ponce de Leon springs. The two in the automobile were not hurt. The motorcycle was damaged, and the automobile had a bent axle, a smashed lamp and a broken fender.

Another car was pressed into service, and Smith was taken to the Grady hospital, where his wounds were dressed. He was cut about the head, but not seriously.

It appears the accident was caused by double parking, a machine was to get the right-of-way. Both paused for a moment, and simultaneously shot forward. No cases were made.

Mr. and Mrs Gober got another automobile, and started again for Roswell. Mrs. Frances Gober was the mother of H. C. Gober. She was 99 years old at the time of her death.

OCTOBER EXPORTS TOTAL CLOSE TO $200,000,000

Decrease in Imports Gives Big Trade Balance in Favor of U. S.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—The official analysis of the foreign trade of the United States for October, published today by the department of commerce, shows total exports of $195,404,620 against total imports of $138,080,620, leaving a balance of trade in favor of the United States for the month of October more than $57,000,000.

The trade balance in favor of the United States was maintained despite a fall of nearly a hundred millions in exports of crude materials for manufacturing as compared to October last year and decreases all along the line in everything but foodstuffs, which showed large increases.

For the ten months of the year the trade balance stands at more than $114,000,000, although the falling in export values as compared against the first ten months of 1913 is about 25 per cent less.

Don't say: "It's just a cold." It may turn into rheumatism, or dropsy, or gout, or other serious sickness that comes from weak kidneys. Because colds are due to congestion. Congestion makes the kidneys over-work to filter the blood. Colds often cause the kidneys weak. First, break the cold; then use Doan's Kidney Pills to avert the kidney dangers. METHODIST CONFERENCE BEGINS MEET AT DAWSON

Bishop W. A. Candler Presides Over Ministers of South Georgia

BY REV. LOY WARWICK.

DAWSON, Ga., Nov. 25.—The forty-eighth session of the South Georgia Methodist conference met here today with Bishop W. A. Candler presiding. The features of the morning session were the address of Bishop Candler, the reading of report on new Methodist university by Dr. W. C. Lovett, and the appointing of the boards for the next four years.

The report on Emory university emphasized that the new university is to be under the perpetual control of the church.

Dr. A. M. Williams will be chairman of the committee on applicants for the next four years. Dr. T. D. Ellis will head the board of education, and Dr. W. S. Ainsworth the missionary board.

Bishop Candler's address on the wise and foolish virgins made a profound impression on the conference. The bishop, in his opening address, referred to the fact that a large number of revivals have been held and many new members added to the church.

TURKEY MUSTN'T BOTHER U. S. DIPLOMATIC NOTES

Uncle Sam Demands Explanation for Retarding Morgenthau's Messages

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—The United States is asking Turkey about the reported action of the Porte in refusing transmission to code dispatches between neutral diplomats in Constantinople and their home offices. Such an action would prevent Ambassador Morgenthau from communicating with Washington in the state department code.

News of Turkey's reported action comes through the cable companies and so far there has been no official notice served upon the state department by any authorized agents of the Turkish government. The United States will insist upon its right of free communication with its diplomatic representatives as long as telegraphic and cable lines are open to general use or in fact workable.

There is always the implied understanding that such messages shall be strictly neutral and not be the means of conveying any information of military value.

Nothing had been heard today from Ambassador Morgenthau in response to a request for a detailed account of the circumstance attending the firing upon the cruiser Tennessee's launch by Turkish forts at Smyrna on November 17, and it is supposed that he has been delayed by difficulty in communicating with Consul General Horton at Smyrna.

BANK CLEARINGS SHOW ADDITIONAL IMPROVEMENT

Report for Three Days This Week Shows Deficit Is Being Wiped Out

Business men will feel encouraged over the additional improvement in bank clearings shown in the first three days of this week. This improvement has been gradual but steady for the past few weeks.

Bank clearings for the first three days of this week are only 27.52 per cent behind the corresponding period last year. Tuesday's clearings were $1,-934,815.05, against $2,622,989.71 for the corresponding day last year, and Wednesday's clearings were $2,254,551.47, as against $3,083,966.48 on the corresponding date in 1913.

Monday's deficit was $902,919.35; Tuesdays was $698,674.66, and Wednesday's $831,415.01.

These figures contrast with a daily loss a while back as high as nearly $1,500,000, and show that while clearings are still behind last year, the reduction is gradually becoming less.

The betterment is attributed mainly to the freer movement of cotton, which is putting more and more money in circulation and is resulting in better collections and more business activity.

Just what effect the operation of the federal reserve bank will have on clearings no one seems able to forecast.

Baby of Future is Considered

Much thought has been given in late years to the subject of maternity. In the cities fine maternity hospitals equipped with modern methods. But most women prefer their own homes and in the towns and villages, they prefer them. And since this is true we know there are many splendid letters written on the subject that our "Mother's Friend" is a great help to expectant mothers. They write of the wonderful relief, how it seemed to allow the muscles to expand without undue strain, and what a splendid influence it was on the nervous system. Such helps as "Mother's Friend" and the broader knowledge of them should have a helpful influence upon babies of the future.

In a little book for such women these points are more thoroughly brought out and a copy will be mailed to anyone who will send us their name and address.

"Mother's Friend" is sold in all drug stores and highly recommended for its timely usefulness. Its safeness and the real help it affords. Ask for it at the store and write us for the book. Bradfield Regulator Co., 311 Lamar Bldg., Atlanta, Ga.

No Matter How Disheartening You Can Overcome It.

Blood disorders are quickly checked by S. S. S., the famous blood purifier. It rushes to the blood and in three minutes has traversed the entire circulation. It penetrates to where the blood is made. It washes out those spots and places where stagnation has settled, it cleanses the membranes, drives irritation from the joints, fills the blood with a rich antidotal influence and from head to foot creates conditions that make for blood health. There is hardly a people in every community who know this to be true. They have used S. S. S. for severe forms of rheumatism, for indolent, ulcerated spots, for eruptive skin diseases, for any and all those bodily conditions caused by blood loaded with impurities. Being a pure product of Nature it can not hurt the stomach and has therefore been the refuge of a host of people misguided in their dilemma by first flying to those dangerous mercurial drugs which have claimed so many unfortunates. If the skin breaks out in a rash, if boils or other eruptions appear, if there are blood risings or any other indications of impure blood get a bottle of S. S. S. at once of any druggist. But beware of substitutes. If in doubt as to your trouble or you wish competent medical advice free, write to the medical department, The Swift Specific Co., 38 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga. General Pessimism is another leader who has been routed.

England probably figures that if war interferes with football, why cut out war.

If You Intend Building, Build Now.

We may gain a lesson from the turtle and his ways. At the first indication of danger he draws up into his shell and moves not. To all intents and purposes he is dead. After a period of repose, there being no further sign of trouble, he comes out of his shell and proceeds on his way rejoicing.

When business in this country first heard the crash of the European war, it drew into its shell and was still. The frightful sound went harmlessly by. No catastrophe came. The period of repose is now over and business is coming out of its shell.

For the purpose of setting business on the forward march again as speedily as possible, The Journal has advocated and is still advocating that the cotton growers sell enough of their cotton to pay their debts and thus put money in circulation with its inevitable revivifying effect. To this end it is also urging the co-operation of all southern business interests.

In pursuance of this policy of every one doing his share for the restoration of normal activities, two weeks ago The Journal editorially urged all persons who contemplate building homes or other structures, to do so now. The evidences of approval that followed show how surely general acquiescence in such a movement would stimulate not only the building trades but all business here in Atlanta.

Building now would yield a manifold benefit. It would help the builder because his building would cost him less. It would help the contractor because he could keep his business going and give work to scores of skilled laborers who are now idle. It would greatly reduce unemployment in Atlanta, putting money into pockets that are now empty. It would benefit the merchants with whom that money would be spent for food and clothing. It would send a healthy stream of life blood through all the arteries of trade.

But for all these benefits to flow, the beginning move must originate with the man who was maturing his plans for building when the war threatened. The war came but now it has gone, that is, so far as the complete halting of American business is concerned. The time for drawing up in the shell has passed. It is an uncomfortable position at best. It is abandoned gladly at the earliest moment possible. Any architect, any contractor can easily prove to prospective builders, by the irresistible logic of figures, why that moment is now.

The build-now movement contains no elements of charity. None are expected, none are desired. But it is a case where enlightened self-interest will launch a multitude of benefits. Let the reserve power of Atlanta's building growth, run to cover by the war, now come forth and lay its quickening touch upon Atlanta's reawakening business.

Anyway, peace is worth fighting for.

In a way Europe is lucky. She doesn't have to import turkeys for Thanksgiving.

Charles Northen.

The tributes of love and honor to the memory of the late Charles S. Northen that have come from all parts of the state serve to empasize his high qualities as a man and a citizen and the loss that Atlanta and Georgia have sustained in his passing.

His was a life of sincere service. The public positions of honor which he had he filled with distinction. To his friends he was ever a source of delight and inspiration. Every one with whom he came in contact felt the force of his attractive personality and the grip of his radiant good will.

He lived simply. His duties he discharged with unassuming courage. In all the relations of life he was a man. Of such services and qualities as his is constructed the worth-while fabric of life. His memory will be ever green in the hearts of Georgians.

Why should we be pessimistic when the czar, the kaiser, the king and the rest of them over in Europe are each so optimistic about the outcome of the war?

Winter Farming.

It is admitted practically everywhere that the best way to assure a reduction in the cotton acreage next spring is to sow a large acreage of grain crops this winter. This has already been done very generally throughout the cotton states. No trip through the country nowadays but what will show green fields nurturing their treasures against the coming of the harvests next summer.

But much may still be done by southern farmers. It is not too late even now for valuable crops to be sown—crops that will effect a saving of money next spring if they are used at home or that will be a source of income for the farmer if taken to market and sold. Not only will the sowing of these crops now, bring such valuable returns, but it will mean that the cotton acreage will be reduced by just so much—and this in turn will steady the price of the staple carried over from this year and make certain a livable price for the crop next fall.

Present interest in the cotton problem is, however, all centered in what food crops southern farmers may plant now. For the purpose of aiding the farmers in their winter farming operations, the department of agriculture at Washington is issuing special bulletins on the growing of winter wheat and winter oats in the cotton belt.

Both of these crops, the department points out, may be planted now with the full assurance of successful harvests. Oats, however, it declares will be found the crop most generally available. In this connection the following comments of C. W. Warburton, agronomist in the bureau of plant industry are interesting:

> While it is now too late to sow oats to supply pasture this fall, the crop may be sown safely for grain in November in eastern and southern North and South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana and southern Texas. Many experiments have shown that October or November seeding will produce far better yields of oats in the south Atlantic and gulf states than sowing during the winter or early spring.

Mr. Warburton further shows that wheat and barley as well as oats constitute good winter crops and will find a ready market next year both for domestic consumption and for export.

With these facts in view and the further fact that a large variety of delicious and nourishing vegetables can be raised throughout the winter in all the cotton states, it is clear southern farmers, great and small, may, by the proper expenditure of effort now, find themselves next spring largely recouped for their losses on cotton this year.

The earth is often designated as "she" because no man knows the age thereof.

Women know more about styles in a minute than men do in a thousand years.

Many a man gets a reputation for being good natured because he is too lazy to take his own part.

War and Sports.

Indignation against the playing of football is expressed by nearly the entire British press today because almost no men enlisted as a result of recruiting rallies at Saturday's matches.

These are the words of a news dispatch from London Monday which further states that as a result of the campaign carried on at football matches throughout the country only one recruit was secured. The dispatch also describes the crowds as drowning out the voices of the speakers and recruiting officers with shouts as the teams came on the fields and greeting all enlistment appeals with "stolid refusal."

One reads this with a sense of shock. It recalls the accounts of how the people of ancient Rome were so observed in their games and gladiatorial shows that they were deaf to the sounds of the northern hordes knocking at their gates.

In England football occupies much the same position as baseball here. It draws public interest in a similar manner, but we cannot think that absorption in sport is really at the bottom of the slow enlistment or that English manhood has allowed itself to sink into forgetfulness of every other consideration except interest in athletic contests.

With the isolation given by the English channel and enforced by the superb English navy, the war is doubtless still a remote sort of affair to great numbers of people in the British Isles. This isolation and this remoteness are rendered still more profound by an almost impenetrable censorship. Young men see their comrades enlist and go away and whether they be killed or wounded or survive and are the heroes of a hundred brilliant charges or daring exploits, nothing more is heard of them except perhaps a bare mention in the casualty lists months afterward. It is not a situation, it thus can be seen, calculated to arouse much war enthusiasm.

But let one of England's coast cities be destroyed by the enemy's warships and the country itself invaded, and we doubt not that football and everything else of the kind would be forgotten and the nation would rise and volunteer as one man. The war would have been brought home to them. They would know. No recruiting officer would have to impress upon them the gravity of the situation. It thus appears that though England's isolation is its greatest strength it is also in a sense a source of weakness.

You'll not get anywhere unless you start.

One secret of success is the ability to keep your secrets.

WAR SONGS

By Frederic J. Haskin

Music has held a place in war since man first learned to chant a battle cry and play upon a reed. Fighters of old days would as lief have gone unarmed into battle as without pipes, trumpets or drums. Today, with bullets and battleships music still is an important adjunct to army and navy. For centuries leaders have known that singing soldiers march faster than silent soldiers, and, entering battle with a song upon their lips, possess that confidence which inspires daring and gains victories. Successful war songs have been thrilling, inspiring, catchy airs, not likely to awaken memories of home.

Swiss soldiers in the French army were forbidden, under penalty of death, to sing or even whistle their beloved "Ranz des vaches" because it aroused them to tears. It was feared that singing the song would make them homesick, unfit for duty and encouraged to desert.

* * *

Germans realize that man's vocal organs form the most wonderful musical organ. Although there are more than 10,000 musicians in the German army, the soldiers are encouraged to sing individually and taught to sing in unison. In the present war German soldiers are commanded by officers to sing at certain times. They also have been trained to yell in charging.

* * *

The United States government knows the value of music to the military. There are sixty-nine bands with a total of more than 1,700 musicians in our regular army. The navy has forty-eight bands with more than 600 musicians. It is estimated that Uncle Sam spends more than $840,000 a year in salaries to his musicians.

* * *

When history of the present war is written it will be found that French buglers, with instruments fitted with one key so as to resemble a cornet; Scotch Highlanders, with bagpipes; English and German bands, and the Russian fife and drum corps have played important parts.

History is replete with incidents where music served nobly in battle. One little known was at Quebec in 1760. When the British began retreating in disorder, an officer informed the commander he had erred in forbidding the Highland pipers to play and explained how bagpipes inspired the Scotch. The commander ordered the pipers to "blow like the devil." When the stirring notes were heard the retreating Scotch stopped and reformed.

The effect of the present war on music probably will be more damaging than on any art because music is the most cosmopolitan art, but as all wars between civilized nations have produced war songs the greatest of wars may produce the greatest war songs. Hundreds of songs of this war already have been written. Thousands will be written. In the first year of the Civil war it is estimated that 2,000 war songs were written.

With few exceptions the most famed have been written in time of peace, either in anticipation of war or after war ended. The most notable exception is that of "The Star Spangled Banner," born in heat of battle. It is noteworthy also that almost all of the famous war songs have been written by those who stayed at home. This is said to be due to the fact that music is harmony and war is discord.

* * *

In war the soldier is quick to pounce upon a catchy air and adopt it as his marching or battle song. His fancy made famous a number of songs that are without merit when viewed from the poetical or musical standpoint. Some of the most famous war songs have silly words and music whose merit only is rhythm in time with the swing of the march.

* * *

Tommy Atkins' newest war song is "It's a Long, Long Way to Tipperary." He adopted it in the first days of recruiting in England and carried it across the channel. Today the ditty is on the battlefield. Even the French are singing "C'est loin d'ici a Tipperary" with "Adieu Piccadilly, adieu donc Leicester Square." The French have added a song of their own, "Sambre et Meuse," a march of 1870.

The Tipperary song was written and composed in New York by Jack Judge and Harry Williams, the latter composer of "I'm Afraid To Go Home In The Dark." The song was published in London only two years ago and yet it already has been made historic by war. When a sailor from the torpedoed Cressy began singing "It's a long way to Tipperary," a fellow sailor from the wrecked vessel retorted, "It certainly is, if you have to swim."

* * *

So the song has taken rank with others made immortal by war, "Yankee Doodle," popular in the American Revolution and sung in all our wars since 1776; "The Girl I Left Behind Me" by the Civil war and "There'll Be a Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight," to the tune of which we fought Spain. Like these songs, the Tipperary ditty is without serious purpose, but it has the lilt that soldiers love.

* * *

"Yankee Doodle" was written between 1755 and 1765. Its origin is unknown. The music is supposed to be an old dancing tune and the words were written to ridicule the American colonial militia raised to aid the British fight the French. In the war of 1776 the colonials sang it with "On the Road to Boston," "My Dog and Gun," "Rural Felicity," and "Washington's March," but "Yankee Doodle" has survived as most famous.

* * *

"Dixie" originated in a minstrel show, but holds an enduring place in the music of our nation. Among the Confederates, it shared its popularity with "Maryland, My Maryland." This song was written by Miss Hattie Cary, of Baltimore, at the beginning of the Civil war and set to an old college tune, "Lauriger Horatius." Later, in a Confederate camp near Manassas Gilmer a band had played at an officer said, "Now let's hear a woman sing." Miss Jenny Cary, sister of the author, sang "My Maryland." Thousands of soldiers caught up the tune and it went all over the south.

Most famous of all war songs is the "Marseillaise." It is one of the few not written by one who stayed at home. Claude Joseph Rouget de Lisle, a young officer in the French army, wrote words and music in the single night of April 24, 1792, just before the great revolution in France. The song swept the nation.

It got its name from a band of revolutionaries, "Reds of the Midi," who sang it marching from Marseilles to Paris. At Waterloo, when Napoleon gave up to despair, the band played on and the strains of the "Marseillaise" sent the old guard to the field of slaughter. A German valuation of the song was made by Klopstock, who said to its author: "Sir, your song has sent 50,000 gallant Germans to their death."

* * *

Among Great Britain's wealth of war songs is "Rule, Britannia," a national ode and one of the chief patriotic expressions in music of the British race. It was written in 1740. The chorus, "Rule, Britannia, rule the waves, Britons never shall be slaves," is a lyrical political prophecy and Richard Wagner said its first eight notes form the most typical musical utterance of the British people.

England's most famous war song is "God Save the King," which became popular in 1745 when sung in opposition to the Jacobite rising in Scotland. The music is supposed to have evolved from folk songs, but its origin is obscure. The Austrian song, "God Preserve Our Gracious Emp'ror," composed by Joseph Haydn in 1797, during the Napoleonic wars was suggested by and probably written in rivalry to "God Save the King."

* * *

Samuel Francis Smith, a Boston clergyman, wrote "America"—"My Country 'tis of Thee," which we sing to the tune of "God Save the King." "America" was first sung at a Sunday school Fourth of July celebration in Park Street church, Boston. Five hundred and seventeen new airs for "America" were written some time ago when the Society of the Cincinnati advertised for a new tune for the song. The national song of the Swiss and the royal national song of Sweden also are sung to the tune of "God Save the King."

Germany has the richest collection of war songs with "Die Wacht am Rhein" foremost. It was written by Max Schneckenburger in 1840. Carl Wilhelm composed the music in 1854. The song struggled for popularity for years and finally gained its fame in the Franco-German war of 1870. Wilhelm was pensioned by the emperor.

* * *

"The Rhine Song" won popularity in Prussia in 1840 because of its lyrical defiance to France in the words, "They shall not even win thee." France replied tauntingly through Alfred de Musset when he wrote, "Nous Favons eu, votre Rhin Allemand." ("We have had it, your German Rhine.")

* * *

Belgium's war song, "La Brabanconne," was written in 1830 in tribute to defenders of Brussels when the city was threatened by a Dutch army of invasion. The song took fire when Belgium won independence. The war between the Dutch and Belgians also gave Holland a war song, "For King and Fatherland." She already had her "Dutch War Song," dating from 1622, a ballad of the Spanish war with the Netherlands.

* * *

Russia is not as rich in war songs as her allies and enemies in the present war. Her national song, "God the All-terrible," was composed in 1830 by General Alexis F. von Lvoff by orders of Emperor Nicholas I. The Turks are not famed as singers and are poor in war songs. Their national songs change with each sultan.

* * *

"Rise, Rise Servians," was obscure until the Servians fought the Hungarians in 1848. The war made the song popular and it is now national in Servia. Franz Erkel's "Hungarian National Hymn" is most representative of the Hungarians among several war songs.

* * *

Poland has two great war songs, "Poland Is Not Lost Forever," often called, "Dombrowski's March" after the leader of the Poles who served with the French in the Napoleon war of 1811-12, and "Mid Fire and Dense Smoke," which originated in the Polish revolution of 1863, and though simple is one of the most impressive war songs ever written.

COURTIN' TIME

By E. K. WOOLEY.

(Copyright, 1914, by E. K. Wooley.)

In the good old days "courtin' time" was recognized as a part of the family institution.

When the oldest daughter of the family arrived at an age when the young men of the community began casting sheep's eyes at her, mother and father retired to the sitting room or the kitchen, after seeing that younger members of the family were in bed or otherwise disposed of where they could work no mischief, and the best room was held sacred to Jane and her beau.

Also when the oldest son began taking notice of any particular girl, father and mother didn't begin "picking" on her, nor demanding to know what he did with his evenings. They knew he was holding her hand in proper form and screwing up his courage to put the momentous question.

And both families were ready to do their level best to help the young folks set up housekeeping and give them a start in life, no matter how humble.

Those were the days when old maids and old bachelors were pointed out as horrible examples of left-overs that nobody wanted. They were the days of fairly happy marriages, too, because everybody was too busy to hatch up soul-yearnings or run around after affinities Pa and ma came to think alike and look alike, and the children proved wonderfully loyal to them in their old age.

But today we take no account of "courtin' time." We turn up our noses at such a plebian practice. We discourage it in our home life. We have no best room for daughter to entertain her young man. There isn't even a secluded corner where they can whisper intimate little things to each other, and exchange warm glances outside the zone of the table lamp.

No, indeed! If any young man comes a-courtin' our daughter these days he's got to come with theater tickets in his hand and the price of a taxi in his pocket. And he doesn't propose any more. There's no place to propose. He just drifts into a sort of understanding with the girl he goes around with most, and by and by, if there are not too many discouragements, he intimates that they might as well get married and be done with it.

In the family where there is a son arrived at the time when he begins to be interested in one particular girl— What a disaster! The girl is never good enough for him, of course. Mother has objections. The father advises against marriage. And what are they going to live on? And does he want to get married now, anyway? Isn't he comfortable as he is? Why court trouble? You can't tell how a girl will turn out these days, et cetera, ad infinitum.

No wonder the marriage rate is falling off. No wonder the divorce rate mounts. We discourage marriage, sneer at it, and give our young people no chance to become really acquainted with each other. We've taken away their "courtin' time" and the "best room" dedicated to them in the old days, and we're raising a lot of lonely spinsters and selfish bachelors in consequence.

"Courtin' time"—it's the high light in life; a time when even father and mother should for a while retire into the background, albeit with watchful eye and ear. It belongs to every budding man and woman. But many a marriage that might have been happy never comes to pass because a girl fears, with a cynical family looking on, to give to the one man the look that's in her heart, and the young fellow who chokes up with his emotions can't get out the words he wants to say when he knows that there are listening ears on the other side of the portieres and that little Bobby is waiting up for him to go because the davenport upon which he sits serves as Bobby's bed.

TRAVELLETTE

BY MIKSAH

NO. 96.—JERUSALEM.

We who are of the west western, we who are of the church Christian, we have been taught to believe that cleanliness is next to godliness. We have been taught aright. But it is a shock for us when we visit the cradle of our faith to find that holiness and dirt go hand in hand. So it is of all holy cities—of Jerusalem of the Jew and the Christian; of Mecca of the Moslem; of Benares of the Brahmin. They are dirty beyond belief, and if their's is the odor of sanctity, no traveler from the United States would ever wish to be a saint.

Yet, for all its dirt and squalor, Jerusalem remains the most interesting city on earth. Every traveler finds it so, for who can fail to be thrilled when he walks in the court of the Temple of Solomon; when he trudges over the Via Dolorosa behind the Christ bearing His cross; when he stands under the arch where Pilate judged Jesus; when he sits in Getnsemane and stands bareheaded on Golgotha? Oh who can fail to be thrilled when he approaches the doors of that church which was builded by Constantine, and fought for by Godfrey and Richard and Baldwin and St. Louis?

But, oh, the misery of the starving Jews who have come here to die in the city of David! Oh, the pity of the miserable Russian moujiks who have come here in rags and hunger to have their sins forgiven them on Calvary! Oh, the horror of the leprous beggars and the deep, dark shame of the wild, spiritual wolves who fatten on the starving lambs of simple faith and deep religion!

Jerusalem in times of peace is provocative of thought—but those thoughts for a Christian when the Turkish soldiers must keep the peace between rival worshippers of the Lamb at His very tomb! And now the pilgrims upon whom the people live are cut off by war, there is no industry, there is little food. Starvation stalks over the hills of Judea and Zion again is desolate.

A Workingman's Gumption

BY DR. FRANK CRANE.

(Copyright, 1914, by Frank Crane.)

A workingman from Thistle Junction, Utah, writes to the Chicago News a letter that is worth repeating. He says:

"I am working man who spent the winter of 191 in Chicago in semi-starvation; but I made up my mind that I would spend no more winters there. So in the spring I left and came west, and have not wanted for anything since. All summer and fall there is plenty of work in the country, where a man can easily make enough to keep him through the winter. And the men who flock to Chicago with the approach of winter are the very ones who ignore these jobs in summer.

"If every single man with no home, or whose home is not in Chicago, would make up his mind to stay away from there at least in winter, and prepare himself for the dull season, the unemployed situation would be 50 per cent easier to handle.

"George Rogers."

This is full of that kind of sound sense that lies close along ground, commonly called gumption.

The problem of the unemployed is a city problem. Efforts made by large cities to alleviate conditions are good in their impulse. In effect they do obviate a deal of suffering. It would not be just to raise any objection to them. But one inevitable result is that they increase the baleful lure of the crowded cities.

The magnet of the city draws powerfully to itself all human iron fillings, but more especially those that are jobless. The consequence is that every winter witnesses the same distress. Anarchists become active, red-raggers agitate, wretched regiments parade, and nobody seems to know what to do.

I don't know what to do. But one thing we all know, that this United States is a big country, there are thousands of small towns in it and thousands of country acres, and that in these the problem of unemployment is not biting.

There are few starving men in Keokuk, Kokomo and Oshkosh. There are no women and children in utter penury around Plymouth. Nobody goes hungry in the farm lands about Webster City, Iowa, and Topeka, Kan., and Thistle Junction, Utah.

If I were down and out, my job gone, and my prospects nil, I know precisely what I would do—head it for the overgrown city, if I had to walk.

I would not speak lightly of any one's distress, but it stands to reason that if there is plenty of food, a neighborly spirit and a chance to make a living in a territory extending over a million square miles or so, and if there is overcrowding, hunger, and no opportunity in another district covering but a few acres, a man certainly ought to go to the former place.

The "problem of unemployment" is at the bottom a problem of the proper distribution of people.

We cannot resist the conviction that if the government would provide free transportation for all needy men and their families to the great south and west, it would help along far better than offering free soup to all who will go to Chicago, Boston, or New York.

Before the Big Game

We suppose the Yale Bowl, which is the vastest amphitheater of ancient or modern times, can be seen through a telescope from Mars. A Martian, told that 70,000 of earth's people will witness today within its rim—which would swallow Vespasian's colosseum—a contest between two great educational institutions, might be astonished to discern that it is not a literary contest. Sight of the barrel surmounted by a Red Cross flag that will dart in the middle of the gridiron during the intermission, and of student ushers passing collection buckets among the furred and cheering thousands, will satisfy him that the clash of the rival teams is only mimic warfare. While he sees Europe distorted with war real and awful, and armed vessels smashing each other with projectiles on the seas, he will discover that this is an exhibition of friendly rivalry within a big-hearted neutral nation. One "G. F. I." writing in the current Yale Alumni Weekly a description of what he saw atop of the Bowl, imagines some future Confucius remarking:

"I believe that the nations of Europe would not have gone to war if each had been sports-loving and athletic enough to have built bowls like this or like the stadiums scattered about this country."

The United States has repeatedly conquered all Europe at the Olympic games. This afternoon promises a sight at New Haven that will be both martial and jovial.—New York Times.

The Searchlight

SAVE YOUR SKIMMED MILK.

Thrifty housewives have devoted much time and thought to the economy of skimmed milk. Some of them have fed it to their families, some to the chickens and pigs, but none of them has willingly thrown it away.

Now that the war has interfered with the importation of chemicals used in the making of celluloid comes a crafty inventor and asks everybody to save the skimmed milk. He uses the skimmed milk to make films for the movies, coat buttons, collar buttons, piano keys and French ivory toilet articles.

The first roll of skim-milk film was exhibited in Chicago several days ago in the exhibit of the Illinois state food commission at the National Dairy show. The Illinois state food commissioner, W. Scott Mathews, was responsible for the exhibition.

A BATTLE OF LIGHT.

In the naval world there seems to be no end to the irrepressible struggle for supremacy between armor plate and projectiles. The same sort of battle is going on in the more peaceful world of street lighting. The electric arc light drove out the open gas flame; then the incandescent mantle restored gas to where it could compete with the arc; whereupon the incandescent electric light entered the field. By the use of tungsten filament, the high power incandescent light grows into great popularity and served for the basis of scores of "Great White Ways."

The arc lights came back with the use of special glass globes, giving greater diffusion and imparting softness to their brilliantly white light, and for a moment it seemed that the incandescent was put out of the running. Then the backers of the incandescent lights discovered that bulbs filled with nitrogen would give greater light, softer light and more diffused light. So for a few months, the gas-filled bulbs were supreme.

Now, as the latest thing in the struggle, the arc light people have invented a new magnetite equipment which adds 50 per cent to the efficiency of the arc and gives a greater light for less current than the gas filled incandescent.

Fortunately, there is one good thing about this war of light. The people who live in our cities are the beneficiaries of each successive battle, whoever wins it.

Quips and Quiddities

A New York clubman tells of a quaint character he met while on a hunting trip in Canada—not summer. This man was of French extraction and proud of a friend of his in New York, one Gaston Lespinasse, of whom he talked constantly.

"You live in New York?" he at once asked when the Gothamite appeared.

I do."

"You know Gaston Lespinasse?"

"No, I don't think I ever heard of him."

The Canadian seemed disappointed as well as nonplussed. Then he began again:

"You live in New York?"

"Yes."

"You do not know Gastin Lespinasse?"

"Never heard of him."

The Canuck grinned incredulously. Then with the air of one convicting another out of his own mouth, he said:

"Gaston is the cook at the hotel."

Arthur Hyman Takes Over Theater Lease and Opens Monday With Good Feature

Announcement that Arthur S. Hyman, southern manager of the World Film corporation, had taken over from Jake Wells a two-year lease on the Grand theater is coupled with a further announcement that, beginning next Monday, Atlantians will have an opportunity of seeing for the first time a series of European war pictures which recently created such a stir in Chicago that police had to be called out to keep in line the throngs that were anxious to get into the theater to see the pictures.

The pictures were taken in Belgium by Edwin F. Weigle, staff photographer of the Chicago Tribune, who, accompanied by Joseph Medill Patterson, the noted war correspondent, was given by the Belgian government the exclusive right to make pictures on the Belgian battlefields. By arrangement with the Chicago Tribune and the Belgian government, half of the proceeds of the pictures is to go for the extension of Red Cross society work in stricken Belgium.

These motion pictures were the first to reach the United States of actual warfare in Europe. They portray in a realistic manner the great battles of Alost, Aerschot and Malines; the burning of the famous port of Antwerp; the flooding of Lierre and the destruction of Termonde. They show the patriotic Belgians in the trenches, in battle and in the line of march with the allies, and they portray in a manner far more realistic than word can speak the devastation wrought in Belgium by German gun-fire and the subsequent terrible sufferings of the Belgians.

"Charles S. Northen, who so recently passed away, had the esteem, respect and confidence of every member of this board.

"He was full of good cheer and kindness. His work for the Grady hospital was one of fidelity and love. To us who were associated with him in his official position, as trustee, his purpose seemed ever to do all he could to place this institution in the front rank, and to make it a blessing in serving sick and suffering humanity.

"We are filled with a sense of our loss, and the loss to this institution of one who was ever ready to spend himself and his efforts to the upbuilding of the hospital, and all connected with it."

ATLANTA THIEVES DO THANKSGIVING SHOPPING

Atlanta burglars are doing their Thanksgiving shopping early, and several Atlanta dinner tables are likely to be bare of turkey Thursday as witness thefts reported Wednesday morning at police headquarters.

Dr. M. C. Martin, a city physician, had a thirty-five-pound gobbler, the pride of the coop, fated to be chopped at sunrise Thursday, stolen during the night Tuesday from his home, 64 Hill street.

One turkey and several chickens were reported stolen from 301 West North avenue, and two gobblers and one hen from 165 North Jackson street.

BOY HOARDS HIS SAVINGS AND THEN RUNS AWAY

Mrs. Ella Kilgore, of 17 Fells avenue, has asked the police to aid her in locating her thirteen-year-old son, Millard Peyton, who has been missing since Monday.

She says he has been hoarding his savings ever since he was employed at the Columbia Phonograph company, with the intention, she thinks, of going to Oklahoma City, where one of his former playmates lives.

Help the Stomach Digest the Food
When the stomach fails to digest and distribute that which is eaten, the bowels become clogged with a mass of waste and refuse that ferments and generates poisons that are gradually forced into the blood, causing distress and often serious illness.
Most people naturally object to the drastic cathartic and purgative agents that shock the system. A mild, gentle laxative, positive in its effect and that will quickly relieve constipation is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, sold by druggists at fifty cents and one dollar a bottle. It does not gripe or cramp, but acts easily and pleasantly and is therefore the most satisfactory remedy for children, women and elderly persons. For a free trial bottle write to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 451 Washington St., Monticello, Ill.

Should Bonds Be Issued?

Mayor Woodward Members of Police Board Be Recalled? Must Private Citizens Protect Atlanta?

"Bear ye one another's burdens, and so fulfill the law of Christ."

War is abroad.

Winter at hand.

Want is here.

The blood of the man shot last week stains the locker club door. The convicted burglar points to the law-breaking locker club. His wife and children are part of our burden.

Lack of thrift has its victims; the employer paying less than a living wage has his; but the saloon and law-breaking locker club produce more—

Poverty stricken, jobless men.

"We are God's fellow-workers."

Should Atlanta give work to the workless?

Should our city issue bonds to do this?

Surely. But stop—

Should millions from a bond issue be entrusted to officials who promote drunkenness, crime, and pauperism, by licensing law-breaking saloons and locker clubs?

"Every man shall bear his own burdens."

A divided city can only fall.

Atlanta will endure. Let us get together!

If Mayor Woodward and his advisors actually believe an official oath to be meaningless, and laws binding upon public officials only when public officials choose, let us not think of issuing bonds.

TEN PER CENT of the registered voters can call an election to initiate legislation in Atlanta.

TWENTY-FIVE PER CENT of the registered voters can institute an election to recall any official, whether he be MAYOR, COUNCILMAN OR MEMBER OF A BOARD in the City of Atlanta.

An injunction can close today the law-breaking locker clubs and bars.

WE WISH TO HELP AND NOT TO HINDER THE ADMINISTRATION OF MAYOR WOODWARD.

Mayor Gill of Seattle, after a recall and defeat, learned the strength of decency inherent in every city.

Atlanta can do better.

WE ASK ONLY OBEDIENCE TO LAW, A UNITED CITY.

Let us care for God's poor.

Cope May Shift Tigers' Line-up For Vandy Fray

Fort, Substitute Quarterback, Is Being Worked at Halfback; Shows Ability at Advancing the Ball – Team Leaves for Nashville Thursday Morning

SEWANEE, Tenn., Nov. 25.—The cold, disagreeable weather which visited this section during the latter part of last week caused Coaches Cope and Gardner to let up somewhat on the heavy practice work of the Tigers, but, with the return of more pleasant conditions, things are being whooped up again with a vengeance. The last scrimmage of the season was held Tuesday afternoon, and only a light workout is on the schedule for today in preparing for the big game with Vanderbilt tomorrow. A number of the regulars of the team from the lineup that worked against Tennessee is likely.

Johnny Fort's splendid showing in every game in which he has played this season will probably win for him a place in the regular lineup that will start against Vanderbilt. He is being run now with the regular backfield, and is easily the equal of any man on the squad, with the possible exception of Tolley, in openfield running.

The Commodores' line has it on the Purple in weight by several pounds, but it is not believed that there are any backs on that squad that can gain consistently through the Purple forwards. Dobbins and McCormick seem to be just coming into their own, and when they do, then some one must sit up and take notice.

The line will average under 180, and the backfield under 160, making the team no heavier than last year, but the men all know more football, and seem to be more aggressive. On the defensive it is easily seen that there is no comparison between the last year's team and the one representing Sewanee today. Taking them one for man, the new material far outclasses the men whose places they are filling.

Heretofore the coaches have always taken the players down to Nashville on the Wednesday before Thanksgiving, letting them stay all night in a hotel, where they are kept in their rooms all day until time for the game. This year the team will not go down to Nashville until Thursday, when a special train will carry team, coaches, rooters and almost everyone else living on the mountain. It is thought that this will be much better for the team, in that they will not leave Sewanee until a few hours before the game, and therefore not have time to be affected by the great change in the climate and water.

Record Crowd to See Virginia-Carolina Game

RICHMOND, Va., Nov. 25.—This city is putting on its best clothes for the football event of the year, when Virginia and North Carolina meet in their annual game tomorrow. The Carolina team reached the city this morning, and Virginia is expected in this afternoon. Special trains will be run into the city from many points to bring the crowds, and it is expected that a record attendance will see the game. Word has been received from Raleigh that three trains will come up from that place, bringing a large delegation, including Governor Locke Craig and his personal staff.

After considerable dickering, Ionic Brown, of Atlanta, has been selected to referee the game.

Navy Lineup for Big Game in Doubt

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 25.—The Navy coaches have not decided who shall fill three of the line positions in Saturday's game with Army. One guard and both tackles are yet to be selected.

The line, particularly the left wing, admittedly is too weak to withstand shifting attacks. Kennedy, who has been using left tackle, is considered too light, but McCoach, Reed and Decrook, all of whom have had a try at left tackle, have not given complete satisfaction. Graf seems certain to fill left guard but the selection for the other side of center is a problem. The probabilities favor Millus, a husky freshman of 190 pounds, who, however, does not know a great deal about the game. R. J. Jones, another 190-pounder, is also under consideration for the position.

Vanderbilt-Sewanee Game a Toss-Up

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 25.—The football teams of Vanderbilt and Sewanee meet here tomorrow for their twenty-sixth encounter. While no championship is involved, the usual interest attaches throughout Tennessee in the outcome. The day before the clash, it looks like a toss-up as between the two teams, though Vanderbilt's showing against Carlisle of her strong opponents inclines many here to think well of her chances to win.

Both teams are reported in good condition. The weather is raw, but typical of the Thanksgiving contests.

PREP NOTES

The local prep football league will be brought to a fitting close Thursday, when Boys' High meets Tech High in the final game of the season. This game will also be for the championship of the league, as both have perfect percentages so far.

The league this season has been unusually successful. Every team in the league has had a good season, and the fight for first honors has been hot from the start.

Surprises and upsetting of dope have been numerous this year, in nearly every case where one team was figured to win easily, the other would almost invariably turn the tables and spill the dope until it became almost impossible to dope out a winner in advance.

The game Thursday morning will be a hummer, and although in light of past performances of the two teams against members of the league Tech High seems to have a big edge on B. H. S., there is absolutely no telling how the game will run out.

Georgia Military Academy will journey down to Columbus this week, where they will play the Columbus Industrial High school a return engagement Thanksgiving day.

The Sportlight

BY GRANTLAND RICE

A FEW ALL-AMERICANS.

Little Sammie, aetat nine,
Whaled his sister on the spine;
Then, as agile as the flea,
Kicked his cousin on the knee.
Whooped his parents with a cheer,
"Gee! if Yost was only here!"

Little Heinie, sturdy youth,
Cracked his baby brother's tooth;
Then he twisted off an ear
While the baby screamed with fear.
Said his father with a cackle,
"Won't he make a corking tackle?"

Little Willie with a crack
Broke his nurse's leg and back;
Hurled his sister through the door—
Threw her from the seventh floor,
Said his father, wrapped in bliss,
"Walter Camp must hear of this."

Seventy thousand paid admissions is an American record at a sporting carnival, but not a world record. In England, at the Crystal Palace grounds, over 100,000 have paid to see single contests, but the space was there and the charge for over half the throng was only a shilling—and not eight shillings for the worst seats in the stands.

One can imagine what a world series ball game or a Yale-Harvard battle might draw with room to handle 150,000 people and 120,000 of these set up twenty-five cents a throw.

THE BANTAMS OF BALLDOM.

"Kitchener," we read in a dispatch, "has at last grudgingly decided to sanction a bantam battalion and waive the height limit."

In times present and in times past a Bantam Battalion of Balldom would give any of the mastodons all the battle they might yearn for.

Rudolph, Suthoff, Griffith and Warhop wouldn't have formed a bad pitching staff. McInnis, Groh, Maranville and Bush are pretty fair infielders. And there is a rumor still extant that Willie Keeler wasn't the worst ball player that ever lived in his day and time.

In the boxing game bantams and lightweights, so far as brains, skill and quickness are concerned, are worth all the heavyweights ever huddled through the ropes. And brains, agility, courage, skill and stamina are as much a part of warfare as siege guns and shrapnel.

It isn't the size of one's frame, but the inside of it, that completes all rebuttal.

SWITCHING A CHORUS.

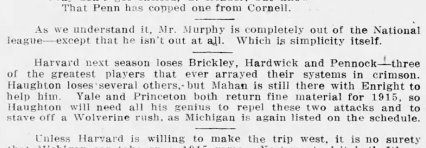
When you hear that I've outbatted T. Raymond Cobb
And made Walter Johnson retire;
When you hear that I'm starring in C. Brickley's job
And setting the gridiron on fire;
When you hear that I've made Jerry Travers retire
And driven the Smoke to his den—
As you ponder it over, G. Reader, you'll know
That Cornell has copped one from Penn.
—From the Sportlight, 1912.

When graft in New York is abolished at last
And Baker is done with the stick;
When I have lashed Byron and Keats to the mast
As a bard who is there with the kick;
When a new kind of show, a musical show
And Turkey is givingusell—
Pray don't get excited, G. Reader, but know
That Penn has conped one from Cornell.

As we understand it, Mr. Murphy is completely out of the National league—except that he isn't out at all. Which is simplicity itself.

Harvard next season loses Brickley, Hardwick and Pennock—three of the greatest players that ever arrayed their systems in crimson. Haughton loses several others, but Mahan is still there with Enright to help him. Yale and Princeton both return fine material for 1915, so Haughton will need all his genius to repel these two attacks and to stave off a Wolverine rush, as Michigan is again listed on the schedule.

Unless Harvard is willing to make the trip west, it is no surety that Michigan can take on a 1915 game. Yost must visit both Ithaca and Philadelphia next fall, and to make three eastern trips together would be more than any team could stand.



The last bit of evidence which may be introduced in the test for the football championship of Dixie will be in prowidence night. As usual, Turkey day will bring most of the prominent teams in this section, in fact all except Auburn and Georgia, into battle, but the additional bit of argument on the championship debate will evolve from a game which southern fans would, as a rule, care little about, outside of the city of Knoxville. By a queer turn of things, Kentucky State college is going to have some little hand in settling the discussion as definitely as possible under the circumstances.

If the Blue Grass lads should happen to smear the Tennessee eleven, a kind of left-hand argument could be advanced against the claim of the Knoxville boys to first honors, even though none would scarcely claim that the Lexington team would be entitled to the honor, in spite of the fact that the team is a member of the S. I. A. A. They have not played enough association teams to be figured very strongly in any calculations toward enthroning a gridiron king for the season.

Of course it is not anticipated that Kentucky State will trim Tennessee. It may be possible, but it is not likely. However, there were a great many who figured Auburn a copper-riveted cinch over Georgia, some to their very genuine sorrow. Hence, with the odds against them the Colonels might rise up and smite the Tennessee hip and thigh, or any other convenient parts of their collegiate anatomy.

Aside from the fact that Tennessee is supposed to have a considerably better team than their opponents in this final battle, Coach Clevenger's squad will be working over an advantage in that Auburn has now fired her last gun, and the Vols have seen what effect it had. In other words, to lapse into a bit of golfing jargon. The Plainsmen were "away" and have played their shot. They rimmed the cup, and the Vols now have one to win, as they see it, and two to halve.

Coming right down to cases, it is hard to see how tomorrow's game is going to affect the standing of these two teams to any appreciable extent, unless the Kentuckians should happen to defeat the Vols. Of course in such case, Auburn would have a better claim since she has not been defeated at all. But, if Tennessee wins, as she probably will, the question of the title will still be very much in dispute.

The case between the two has been likened by some to the title of a boxer, but the comparison is hardly applicable. In the first place, a boxer supposedly lands his crown after defeating all the prominent aspirants in his division unless he happens to have employed the services of a live press agent, and furthermore he is dubbed the main squeeze until some other fellow topples him over. In other words a boxer is not destinated the kingpin of his division for any specified time. Furthermore a boxing champion is one and the same party from the time he seizes and possesses himself of the honor, until he loses it, whereas a football team undergoes a change in its personnel from year to year.

The Auburn team of 1914 is somewhat different from the team of 1913. Possibly the 1913 team would have won undisputed claim again this year, had it remained intact, but this year's team is another proposition. Tennessee is not contesting the claim of the 1913 Auburn team, but that of the present one. And this contest, by the way, is sure to run on ad infinitum, unless by some chance a game is arranged to settle the controversy. For those who support Auburn's claim, it can be pointed out that no team scored on the Plainsmen. For those who support the claim of the Vols it can be argued that no team held them to a tie, though they were scored on by three of their opponents, while they outscored Auburn.

Vols Decline Auburn Game

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 25.—The Tennessee football eleven will not meet the Auburn team in a post season game this year, according to Dr. Brown Ayres, president of the University of Tennessee. Tennessee was approached on the subject by Auburn yesterday but the Tennessee authorities adhered to their stand taken early last week, that of being opposed to post-season football. Tennessee authorities do not consider that the championship of the S. I. A. A. is now in dispute and hence there is no reason for playing a post season game with Auburn.

Auburn Wires Consent to Game

AUBURN, Nov. 25.—The following telegrams have been exchanged between Tennessee and Auburn alumni in Birmingham, and the Auburn Athletic authorities in regard to a post season game between the Auburn and Tennessee football teams:

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Nov. 24.—M. J. Donahue and Thomas Bragg, Auburn Ala.—If Tennessee defeats Kentucky, and you make other arrangements regarding the Indian game for December 5, would you be willing to play Tennessee in Birmingham on that date? Answer quick as possible.

Auburn's reply:

AUBURN, Ala., Nov. 24.—Tennessee and Auburn alumni, Birmingham, Ala.—If Tennessee defeats or is tied by Kentucky, and we can make other arrangements for our Carlisle game, we will be very glad to play Tennessee in Birmingham on December 5. We do this for the sake of the sport. We trust game can be arranged. Advise us as soon as possible.

West Due to Stage 1915 National Golf Tourney

BY MILT SAUL,
Editor Southern Golf Magazine.

Considerable interest is being shown by golfers in general and by those in the U. S. G. A. handicap list in particular as to the selection of the course for the 1915 national championship. In little more than a month from now the executive committee of the U. S. G. A. meet to decide this question among others.

A year ago the custom of making a preliminary selection of three courses was inaugurated. Out of these three courses one is finally chosen. Usually the championship remains in the east for two years and then goes west for one, the idea being to represent about equally the golfers in each district. The last two years the championship has been in the east; in 1913 at Garden City, and in 1914 at Ekwanok. It is therefore the west's turn.

As Chicago has captured the great majority of the more recent U. S. championships held in the west, we believe that the committee will be apt to select a course located in one of the middle western golfing districts, and if we were to name any one links more apt to land the event than any other we would name the Detroit Country club.

This course is a truly championship course. It has the best of turf, it is scientifically laid out, and last but not least it has length. This last feature was missing at Ekwanok, and was the only drawback to an otherwise perfect tournament. The second shots on the Manchester course were too universally of a pitch variety—there were few chances for that very important department of golf—the midgame play. This is overcome at Detroit, and many opportunities for the use of the brassey, cleek and full-midiron are given.

In picking out the courses he liked best in America, Harry Vardon gave the critics rather a surprise by naming the Mayfield club, of Cleveland, and the Detroit Country club. For these two he showed a preference for the latter course. This was justified clearly by the better natural turf existing on the Detroit course, if for no other reason. The Mayfield course has a tendency to become a trifle dry and fast.

HARRY VARDON'S CHOICE.

A few years ago nearly every one at all a connoisseur on the subject would pick Myopia as America's best golf course. Then the national game came into existence and opinion was rather divided as to which was the better. Vardon made his selection as he was not thought that any other course had a real "look-in" to combat this title. Brookline, Gordon City, Baltusrol, Merion Cricket club were all known to be very excellent courses, but not quite in a class with Myopia or the National it was thought. But that Vardon overlooked all these eastern courses and named two comparatively (up to that time) unknown courses in the middle west, certainly proved an eyeopener to many eastern devotees of the game. Investigation has proved the worth of the choice, of which the Clevelanders and Detroiters were of course convinced all the while.

Speaking of the general lack of comprehension on the part of the east as to what genuinely fine courses abounded elsewhere in the states, it might be mentioned that a surprise is in store right here in the south for those who have not kept tab on recent construction in golf courses south of Mason and Dixon's line.

The East Lake course at Atlanta, when it has perfected its putting greens, is to be favorably compared with the best northern courses. It presents a more difficult test of golf than all but a very few. Almost every American golf links. The scene of the southern championship for 1915 is on a truly championship course.

Other courses in the south that is will be well to remember when the subject of classy golf is under discussion are those of the Memphis Country club, the Roebuck Springs Golf club, of Birmingham; the Chattanooga Golf and Country club, which has just added fifty acres to their property, the New Orleans Country club, the Nashville Golf and Country club and the Augusta Country club.

There are also a number of first-class courses under construction this winter. Norcross, N. C., has one laid out by the noted golf course architect, Donald Ross, which he claims will not have a peer in the south.

NOTED PLAYER HERE.

Southern championship contenders will very likely find their number augmented by one coming in the person of Mr. T. Dunham, formerly of Boston, now of Atlanta. Mr. Dunham has decided to reside permanently in Atlanta and will henceforward devote the energies of his game to the glory of the Atlanta Athletic club. He has a handicap of five in the United States Golf association, has the distinction of having defeated Mr. Walter J. Travis in the North and South tournament at Pinehurst last spring, and is withal one of the best posted men in the country on the affairs of the U. S. G. A. He is a lawyer by profession, a graduate of Leland Stanford university. He plays an exceptionally long ball from the tee, is steady and consistent with the mid-field clubs and on the greens. He believes in hard work and study of the game as the best means of development and in every spare hour he practices with one or more of the clubs. It is, therefore, a safe prediction that he will show up well in the championship tournament at East Lake next June.

HOLED OUT IN ONE.

The "Holed-Out-In-One-Shot" club has a new member. He is Mr. Samuel C. Dinkins, of the Druid Hills Golf club. On last Saturday, while playing in a foursome, Mr. Dinkins took a mid-iron at the sixth tee at Druid Hills, lifted the ball high in the air for a 125-yard flight and then had the rare satisfaction of seeing it run up and trickle into the cup.

There is no feeling in the human emotion category comparable to that burst of elation which follows the golfer's "holed out" drive. In this particular instance Mr. Dinkins smothered his feelings to a certain extent, but even so that his companions could see that he harbored emotions of an unusual intensity all during the rest of the game.

Even the four caddies felt the importance of the event, for they described it with pop-eyed excitement as they went along and in less than ten minutes after the ball went down it was known to every one on the course.

Mr. Dinkins' "one" on the Druid Hills links is the first to be recorded in that particular organization, and also the third, it is stated, in the history of Atlanta golf. Stewart Maiden holed out a drive at East Lake a couple of years ago, and at Brookhaven last year Mr. Edwin Johnson made a "one" on the sixth hole.

Vols Will Have No Snap Against "Ole Kaintuck"

Coach Clevenger's Team Expects to Win From Bluegrass Eleven, but Does Not Anticipate Walkover—Knoxville Squad in Great Shape for Game

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 25.—While Tennessee will be a three to one favorite over Kentucky State in their annual football game here Thursday afternoon, yet close followers of the game are not expecting an overwhelming Tennessee victory. The Colonels are coming to Knoxville with the same determination to stop Tennessee as that which characterized Georgia's play against Auburn. The Kentucky tribe has not yet been defeated by a Southern Intercollegiate Athletic association team this year, but of course, the Colonels are still in the race for championship honors. Therefore, having hung up a creditable record and having played some of the strongest teams in Ohio to a standstill, the Bearcats believe that Tennessee is not unbeatable, and that a Kentucky victory is possible.

On the other hand, the Volunteers are going at top speed steadily, gilding well the Orange and White machine for the coming conflict. The team is now in its best condition of the season. "Red" Baker, Tennessee's phenomenal halfback, was out with the squad Monday afternoon and he was running behind the interference as though he had never suffered any injury at all. All the bruises received by other members of the team in the fierce Sewanee battle have healed and unless the team has "slowed up" or gone stale, a Tennessee victory is almost a certainty. And, judging from the way Lindsay, Cameron, Thomason, Kelly, Carroll and Kerr tore through the "scrubs" on Wait field Monday afternoon, the Vols are still there with the fierce driving power that has brought them home winners in every battle waged thus far this season. Lindsay, Tennessee's candidate for the southern fullback position, hammered through the "scrub" line with all ease while Cameron, Rainey, Thomason and May skirted the ends for long gains.

Plans of Board of Education for Additional Schools and School Sites of Vital Interest to Real Estate Owners and Agents Who Have Property Suitable for This Purpose. West Peachtree Residence Is Sold for Cash

The plans of the board of education for new schools and an apportionment sufficient for the purpose should be of interest to real estate owners and agents, since in several instances the new buildings would require sites.

The board as a rule does not advertise the fact that it is looking for a location, but this should not prevent agents and owners from listing its offerings with the members.

Contractors and material men are also equally interested in the plans, as new buildings at this time would do much toward relieving the situation.

The list of school requirements is printed below. While some of the buildings to be replaced will occupy their present sites, others will require new locations, and the board would want to be in touch with owners of lots that would be desirable for school purposes. The following is the list, including the apportionments wanted:

Girls' English Commercial high school, at Washington street and Woodward avenue, $100,000.

Girls' High school, $250,000.

Boys' High school, addition and annex, $100,000.

Tech High, $150,000.

White grammar schools.

Two-room building in Spring street, $6,000.

Lot and twelve-room building at Moreland and Euclid avenues, $50,000.

Ten-room building in East Atlanta, $18,000.

Eight-room building near Pearl and Gartrell streets, $40,000.

Eight-room building in Milton avenue, $45,000.

Eight-room addition to Crew street school, $35,000.

Lot and six-room building in Capitol View, $18,000.

Lot and eight-room building in Oakland City, $35,000.

Lot and ten-room building to replace the present Battle Hill school, $50,000.

SIX WEEKS' BATTLE VIVIDLY DESCRIBED BY ARMY JOURNAL

masses without counting its losses, sacrificing everything in a fierce endeavor to attain its object. But the effort was in vain.

"For close on to three weeks we stood up against repeated frantic assaults. Every one of them was repulsed.

"Our front, with its circular formation, was not easy to hold. On the 20th of October the British, particularly the cavalry, had been obliged to withdraw for several hundred yards before a powerful onslaught. Our troops, attacking in conjunction and at the same time with our allies, were successful in re-establishing the impassable barrier which closed the approaches to Ypres. That which was done here by our army corps, working in close harmony with the English corps which it encircled, is worthy of a place in the finest records of military history.

"On the 12th of November the enemy had succeeded, at a point north of Ypres, in crossing the canal over the bridges. By the 18th he had been driven back to the other bank. Also, on the 12th, the enemy succeeded in occupying a certain territory in the region to the south of Ypres. This territory was recaptured from him. On the 15th the attacks of the enemy became less intense, and our position, already strong, became impregnable. This result was obtained by the Belgian army, under orders of General D'Urbal, together with the participation of the armies of Generals DeMaudhui and DeCastelnau. These three armies constituted the group of armies under the command of General Foch. The two last mentioned contributed brilliantly to our success by repulsing all the attacks directed against them and by occupying, between the Oise and the Lys, several positions of importance.

"The decisive assistance that we were able to lend, under these circumstances, to the British, tightened further the bonds uniting the allies in a brotherhood of arms. Finally the energy of our resistance inspired the Belgian army with confidence. This army, which had reorganized on its own territory, now is ready for the engagements of tomorrow.

"The losses of the Germans undoubtedly exceed 120,000 men. In certain trenches 120 metres long there have been found more than 2,000 corpses. This in spite of the fact that the Germans, whenever possible, remove their dead from the field.

"Such heavy losses are to be explained by particular circumstances. If the Germans for three weeks had been attacking in dense masses, the reason was to be found in the recent form of organization of some of their army corps. The numbers of pieces of artillery we had grouped south of Ypres opened in these masses of men sanguinary breaches. The greatness of the result becomes particularly significant if one will realize that the Germans always regarded the breaking of our line at Ypres as most important. In checking their offensive movement we inflicted upon them a most humiliating defeat.

"The Belgian army having been driven from its own land, Emperor William was on the point of proclaiming at Ypres the annexation of this courageous nation, and of glorying in the annihilation of at least one of his adversaries. This double satisfaction was refused him. If Dunkirk, Calais and Boulogne had been taken, Great Britain would have been hampered in communicating with her army on the continent. Finally, France, in maintaining impassable the front of her armies from the sea to Arras, adopted the best and the most efficacious guarantee against a return to the offensive movement of the enemy on Paris.

"The foregoing is an outline of our success. To present it more definitely it might be well to present a comparison of the fronts occupied by our left and by the Germans' right in the beginning of September and then in the middle of November. The result is this: We have to our credit not a series of momentary successes, but a continuous progress, which has made vain the persistent and unimproved effort of the enemy. After our victory on the Marne had, in the middle of September, obliged the Germans to undertake a precipitate retreat, the enemy endeavored at once to win back its advantage, and always by trying to turn our left wing. At no point were the Germans successful.

"During this time, on the contrary, we succeeded in extending our left as far as Belgium, and even as far as the sea. We then maintained our line impregnable in its new positions. The successes in Flanders in which the French troops supported the principal burden, are thus seen to be a continuation, and a development of its victory of the Marne. The glory of this success is due to our leaders and to our soldiers. It is exemplified also by the ability of our general staff to read clearly the purposes and intention of the German commanders.

"Our troops have acquired certain qualities which they perhaps lacked at the beginning of the operations, particularly the ability for rapid defensive organization. The trenches they build today are as good as those constructed by the enemy.

IN EASTERN FIELDS.

"Along with the progress of our arms there should be observed the progress of the Russians which has been becoming more noticeable since the 3rd of November. At the doors of Cracow and of Kalis, our allies are now making their weight felt. It is in this field we should draw our conclusions for here it is that one may perceive in the full light of day the failure of the German plan. This plan, the project of Von Der Golts, of Bornhardi and of Falkenhayn was, as often has been recalled, to crush France in three weeks and then to turn to Russia. Today the fourth month of the war is drawing to its close and still France has not been crushed. On the contrary France, counting from the 5th of September, has enjoyed nothing but success and this in spite of the arraying in opposition to her of a mass of soldiers who in the aggregate represent more than fifty army corps. Those fifty army corps—we say it again and again, for it is the truth and in this truth is found our honor—still are all confronting us."

ZAPATA AND VILLA ARE NEARING GATES OF MEXICAN CAPITAL

laed force that late reports said remained in Mexico City, all other armed forces having left last week. With them went all the national, federal, district and city officials.

Carranza May Reach Vera Cruz Wednesday

VERA CRUZ, Nov. 25.—General Venustiano Carranza is expected to arrive here today or tomorrow at the latest. An official from Mexico City, whose duty it is to look after the official residence in the capital, has arrived here to make preparations for the coming of his chief. From this seaside capital General Carranza will direct his campaign against General Villa.

General Candido Aguilar, who took over Vera Cruz when the American forces withdrew on Monday, has increased his garrison to perhaps 6,000 men who are occupying virtually the same line of outposts as did the Americans. The cable lines to Mexico City were restored yesterday afternoon.

There has been no disorder of any consequence since the Americans evacuated. The order which General Aguilar issued directing the citizens to turn in all arms has brought back to police headquarters a huge stack of pistols and guns of every description, almost all of which were given up under similar circumstances when the American forces occupied the city. W. W. Canada, the American consul general, yesterday conferred with General Aguilar and at that time the general assured Mr. Canada that he would co-operate in the maintenance of friendly relations between the Mexican people and the United States government by seeing to it that Americans were given full protection.

Saloon keepers have been given permission to reopen their places of business today, the only restriction being that drinks must not be sold to men who are already intoxicated. As a matter of fact many saloons reopened last night under special permission but there was little drinking. The streets were filled with happy crowds, made up of men, women and boys, mostly from the laboring element, through which wandered numbers of General Aguilar's soldiers, many of whom were armed and burdened with ammunition.
